We've got SPRING FEVER!

Spring Fever by Evan Kramer

There are many signs of spring fever. It can be caused by such extremely pleasant weather that you can't sit still and have to spend all your time outdoors. Witness: Tuesday's weather. Bright, warm and sunny in the morning and afternoon making for nice dog walking weather. Just ask my dog Myrtle who got to walk me from Battle Rock to Hubbard Creek in the morning. In other parts of town gardeners were busy planting in one of Port Orford's great passions - back yard vegetable gardening. Sandy told me she spent the day in her large yard pulling weeds, pruning vines and trees that are now coming out of dormancy, spreading mulch under the vegetables and planting bedding plants. I was out in my garden last night and was looking over things and noticed one of the young artichoke plants had been eaten down to nothing. The culprits, a tribe of slugs, were all in the immediate vicinity and too well fed to move.

Another sure sign of spring fever is the geometrical progression of things to do. Among other things going on this week is National Library Week which goes from April 17 through 23. Both the Langlois and the Port Orford Libraries have events including an art exhibit at the Langlois Library and a talk this Saturday at the Port Orford Library. I can't think of many institutions that compare in the positive effect that libraries have had on our world. Earth Day is this Sunday, April 24 and the Oregon Department of Parks and Recreation is honoring this day by giving away tree seedlings this weekend.

The Curry County Board of Commissioners has proclaimed the week of April 17-24 crime victim's rights week. That should include just about all of us.

The Port Orford Arts Festival '94 draws nearer and nearer and is set for the weekend of May 6, 7, 8 in locations from Port Orford to Sixes and Langlois. I spoke to Flo Lichtig earlier this week and she asked me tell people that the My Other Life art show scheduled for the Arts Festival weekend at the Lichtig Law Office would be canceled due to personal pressures and the need to catch up on their business. She and Howard apologize for any inconvenience but are hoping to participate in the 1995 Arts Festival. Last year was the first time they put on the My Other Life show which featured artists who do not exhibit in galleries and had good participation and attendance. The Arts Festival T-shirts and sweatshirts continue to be sold at Port Orford Pharmacy, Rick Cook Gallery and Grantland Mayfield Gallery. The pulsar pink schedules have been printed and are available at many businesses, chamber of commerce and visitor centers.

There's going to be an informal meeting related to proposed changes in the commercial zoning in the area roughly from 12th Street to Battle Rock Park. The meeting will be at the Grantland residence located above the Grantland Mayfield Art Gallery. This takes place on Thursday night, April 28, starting at 7:00pm. At the last meeting of the Port Orford City Council held on April 14 the council sent back to the planning department the commercial zone change. This meeting will be an opportunity for people to help draft any or all changes.

The Port Orford Volunteer Fire Department which hasn't had a pancake breakfast in a couple of years is having one on Mother's Day, May 8, at the fire station. The department will be whipping up a pancake, ham and egg breakfast from 7:00am to 1:00pm. The monies raised from this breakfast are going to be used by the department to purchase hand held radios and upgrade radio equipment.

Last but not least the Port Orford Senior Center has a couple of fun things scheduled for Saturday, April 23. They're inviting everyone to spring on down and have lunch at the Senior Center at 11:30am for a suggested donation of $2.50 and then later on in the evening they're having a spring fling dance with music by the Country Travelers starting at 7:30pm.

It's also Spring Cleaning time so keep an eye on the classified ads for those upcoming yard sales!

Springtime at the Library

Springtime is happening at the Langlois Public Library with two wonderful displays. In our handsome display case you will find an enchanting array of eggs and rabbits. Eggs from the big ostrich to the tiny parakeet, eggs decorated in every imaginable color, even some covered with abalone. Special thanks to Anne Cox for lending us her impressive collection of eggs and to Dolores and Richard Purdy for the donation of the ostrich and emu eggs.

Let your eyes wander just a little farther and you will behold a magical piece of art-The Story Table by Port Orford resident Ann Foss. This design of the table was inspired by the figures painted by the Oaxacan Mexicans and it shows the same bright, bold colors. The story depicted on the table came from Foss' "life here by the ocean and a dog we had to give away. The table lent itself to all my ideas for it has so many surfaces each one shows a different story." Foss chose this piece to show at the library because, "it's child-like-it's for kids." And she knows the kids as she is often a guest reader at story hour time.

Behind the table hangs another piece of work by Ann Foss. Titled "Step Ladder" it is an intricate, carefully executed work in colored pencil. "Colored pencil is a lot of work for a basically lazy person, but I found working with color in the intimate way of colored pencil fascinating and absorbing," Foss said. Absorbing is exactly the right word to describe her captivating work.

Happy National Library Week from the staff of the Langlois Public Library.

Future Leo's Club

On April 24, 1994, at 2:00pm at the Port Orford Community Building there will be an organizing meeting for the future Leo's Club. The Port Orford Lions would like to invite prospective youth and parents to attend the meeting. We are hoping to have the North Bend Leo's Club and Lions attend our meeting.

Curry General Hospital

Curry General Hospital will present a free seminar, "Opening Doors: Independent Living In The Home," at 4 PM, Thursday, April 21. It will be held in the hospital conference room, 220 E. Fourth St., Gold Beach.

The seminar is geared toward elderly people or those concerned with loved ones living on their own as they age. The program will include a video and handouts from the American Association of Retired People.

"Older people with special health care needs can live at home by making some simple changes in their living arrangements and using community services," according to Carol Ravinski, CNA, guest presenter.

Ravinski works for the In-Home Service Program which receives support from Oregon Project Independence. The program's services are designed to keep people home and out of nursing homes or other facilities "for as long as possible," Ravinski added.

The session will be the first of three sponsored by the hospital. Others in the series include:

"Your Future — Who Decides?" scheduled for 1 PM, Thursday, April 28, in the Gold Beach Senior Center. This program focuses on how to prepare now to retain personal control and diminish the chances of neglect or abuse in later life.

"Spousal Bereavement and Primary Health Care" is scheduled for 4 PM, Thursday, May 5, in the Curry General Hospital conference room. The presentation will cover medical treatment, medication and support services available locally for newly widowed persons.

All sessions are open to the public. No pre-registration is necessary. For more

Absentee Ballots

Curry County Clerk, Renee Kolen will like to inform registered voters that Absentee Ballots are now available for the upcoming May 17, 1994 Primary Election.

If you will be unable to vote at the polls on May 17, 1994, for any reason, you may still vote by mail. "You just need to request an absentee ballot in writing from my elections division," Kolen said.

County Clerk Renee Kolen will be providing sample ballots to your local library, post office and banks later in the month.

"If you have any questions on requesting an absentee ballot please call my Elections Division at 247-7011, extension 223 or 1-800-634-1147, we'll be happy to help," Kolen said.

Earth Day Seedlings

Oregon will be a little greener after Earth Day when the Oregon Parks and Recreation Department and Oregon Department of Forestry distribute thousands of tree seedlings.

About 30 state parks around Oregon will give away tree seedlings for people to take home and plant. Most of the seedling events will occur Saturday, April 23, while a few will take place on Sunday, April 24, to coincide with local Earth Day observances.

A variety of tree species will be distributed. They are selected to match local growing conditions.

The seedlings will be given on a first come, first served basis. Most participating parks will have only a few hundred to distribute and may limit the number of seedlings given to each family. Tree planting instructions also will be provided.

Locally, tree seedlings will be given away at Humbug Mountain State Park from 10:00am to 5:00pm, Saturday, April 23. The park expects to distribute 1,000 seedlings and is limiting each person or family to 5.

Letter to the Editor

When most people think of a Justice of the Peace, they think of performing wedding ceremonies, or perhaps fining people for traffic infractions. However, with the election for that office coming soon, perhaps people should consider what else this job entails.

In addition to performing wedding ceremonies and handling traffic matters, the Justice of the Peace is allowed to hear small claims and other civil actions involving disputes up to $2,500. A Justice of the Peace can also order the return of property that does not exceed that amount in value. A Justice of the Peace also has the power to evict someone from their residence at the request of a landlord.

On the criminal side, a Justice of the Peace has the power to sign search and arrest warrants, set bail and try misdemeanors, in which defendants can be locked up for up to a year in county jail and fined up to $5,000.

Under certain circumstances, a Justice of the Peace may also serve as a magistrate in more serious offenses, and also has the power to set bail.

Hopefully, when voters cast their votes in May they consider which candidate has more experience and is better qualified to make the tough decisions the job requires.

House in the Library and serving refreshments before and after the program.

In 1855, San Francisco native William Wells traveled on horseback from Port Orford to Coos Bay for four months of hunting and fishing. He encountered soldiers, settlers and Indians during his travels. Subsequently, he published his adventures in a self-illustrated article titled "Wild Life in Oregon", in Harper's Magazine. Marilyn Finn's slide show highlights her unique perspective on a pivotal time in Oregon history. Included in our celebration of National Library Week will be display of posters made by the students of the Driftwood School. Please join us for a pleasant afternoon of entertainment and refreshment at the library.

This program is made possible by the Oregon Council of the Humanities, an affiliate of the National Endowment for the Humanities.

Town Cleanup

A community wide Town Cleanup kicks off a day of events organized by Friends of Free Flight for Earth Day '94 in Bandon on Saturday, April 23. The Town Cleanup begins at 10:00am and will be followed at 1:00pm by an Earth Day Celebration in City Park and a concert at 8:00pm by Ashland folk singer Little Thom.

Four cleanup stations will be set up around town at 10:00am to distribute trash bags, gloves, Earth Day buttons and safety information. These will be located at Bandon Shopping Center in the VA clinic parking lot, in Old Town at the Port of Bandon High Dock, Ocean Crest school parking lot and City Park.

From 11:00am to noon, bags of litter will be returned to the Cleanup stations. Each participant may register for prize drawings. People bringing materials to the Trash bag removal and dump fees are being provided by Donny Goddard and Seaview Sanitation. Bandon Playhouse will be cleaning their adopted miles of Highway 101 that morning. Liza Ehle and By The Sea Gardens will be tending the grounds at City Hall and several businesses have indicated they will field crews of employees to participate.

Little Thom in concert will begin at 8:00pm in the Barn. Little Thom is a popular Ashland folk singer and KSOR radio personality who has been compared to Arlo Guthrie.

Tickets for the concert are $5 for adults and $3 for students and seniors and $12 for a family pass. They are available in advance at Spirit of Oregon in Old Town Bandon or at the door.

Friends of Free Flight is the support auxiliary of Free Flight Bird and Marine Mammal Rehabilitation Center that has been rescuing injured and orphaned wild-life in our area since 1978.

Voter's Forums

Do you know what the "w" in 10w40 motor oil stands for? It stands for Winter. It means the oil has been tested to provide a certain degree (10) of viscosity when cold and another (40) when hot.

There are three kinds of people in this world. Those who can count and those who can't.

Elk River Watershed

On April 14, 1994, 27 people attended the first meeting of the Elk River Watershed Council. After discussion of a joint council with Sixes River, the decision was reached to begin with just the Elk River. However, the possibility of combining Elk and Sixes Rivers at some time in the future is still open for discussion.

Fourteen people requested to be members of the Elk River Watershed Council. During the formation period, Carrie Osborne will serve as chairperson and Bonnie Wagner will be the secretary.

All meetings are open to the public and the next meeting is scheduled for April 28th at 7:00pm in the recreation hall at Elk River Campground. At that time, the Council will discuss goals and opportunities. A Watershed Health Program representative from the Division of State Lands has been invited to explain the program more thoroughly.

City Council Meeting

On Thursday evening, April 14, there was a public hearing on amendments to the zoning ordinance to create new commercial zones and allow manufactured housing in all residential zones. This hearing was postponed from Monday. The manufactured housing change was mandated by the legislature. Most of the comments concerned the commercial zoning change. Real estate agents were concerned that single family homes could no longer be built in certain commercial areas. Local arts and crafts people were concerned that they would no longer be allowed to work in, or live adjacent to, their galleries.

After the hearing there was a special meeting of the city council. The council approved the zoning change concerning manufactured housing but sent the commercial zone change back to the planning department for changes.

In other matters the council appointed Sarah Quillen, Ruth Bryant, Lucille Burea, and Marcia Donaldson to the Parks Commission.
