Arts Festival '94 Draws Near by Sandra Elman and Evan Kramer

The Port Orford Arts Festival '94 is set for next weekend, May 6-8. One of the many participants in this annual celebration of the arts is Port Orford Pottery. They're located on Highway 101 in Port Orford directly across Circle K.

I visited Rory Meadows and Paul Bodke last Monday morning to see how their pottery class was going. Robbie, Jasper, Daphne, Gretchen, Rodan, Marvai and Debby were busy making light switch covers. The popular design amongst this group was coils.

I tried to keep my hands out of the clay by switching back and forth from my coffee cup to pen and paper but it was to no avail. Rory and Paul gave me a piece of clay and suggested I make my own light switch cover. I started rolling little bits of clay to make my own coils and settled on a triangular shape.

Looking at some of the pottery the youngsters had created in previous weeks I knew I was far behind this class. Some of their creations include banks, coil built casserole dishes with animal handles, coil built bowls and candle holders. The group this morning will all participate in the County Wide Art Show at Driftwood Elementary School. So if you'd like to see several interestingly-designed coiled light switches don't miss the show next weekend.

Elsewhere at Port Orford Pottery Rory and Paul have come up with some new living glazes and colors for their popular coffee mugs, toothbrush holders, bowls, etc. One that I purchased recently I refer to as soothing blue. The way I'm accumulating their coffee mugs I may have to retire some of my older mugs that I've collected over the years including my chipped but still useable Ollie North mug. Either that or build another cabinet to house them.

They have created a signature work since they opened their pottery studio and shop last year. The glazes they use are unique and if you're seen around town with one of their coffee mugs in hand everyone knows where you got it. One of Rory's other specialties are the tiles, light switch plates and vases that she has created using real flowers and leaves which she embeds in the wet clay forming an impression. All of these are very different and beautiful. If you haven't given their pottery studio a visit and met them, make a point of stopping by during the Arts Festival '94 weekend. It will be well worth the time.

Port Orford Pottery is open for pot throwing demonstrations all three days of the Arts Festival '94 from 10:00am - 5:00pm.

The Riek Cook Gallery, an anchor in the Port Orford art scene if there ever was one, is another participant in this year's Arts Festival. Many of you attended the reception at the Cook Gallery last Saturday evening to enjoy the good company and inspiring atmosphere of the presentation of the work of Joyce Spioer Kinney and Sonja Wold, titled "Bearing the Lightness of Being."

If you missed the reception you will still want to visit the gallery to enjoy the display of paintings and weavings which compliment each other in every way.

Remembering Richard Nixon 1913-1994 Our 37th President

To be honest I thought our 37th President, Richard Milhous Nixon, would last forever. But a stroke brought him down at the age of 81 on Friday evening, April 22.

Nixon rose to political prominence in 1946 when he was elected to the House of Representatives. Four years later he was elected to the U.S. Senate when he defeated Helen Gahagan Douglas in a bruising battle. Nixon served two years in the Senate before taking his place as Dwight Eisenhower's Vice President for eight years. The 1952 Presidential election featured the famous Checker's Speech which is generally recognized as the one which saved Nixon's career. In 1960 Nixon ran against the Democratic nominee for President John F. Kennedy and lost by a couple of precincts in Chicago. Two years later Nixon attempted to resurrect his political career by running against California's then governor Edmond G. Brown. Brown is remembered now as the father of the California Water Project and even has an aqueduct named after him. Nixon was beaten and on election night gave the famous brush off to the press when he told them, "you won't have Richard Nixon to kick around anymore."

However, Nixon like a cat with nine lives, once again resurrected himself from the political boneyard and won the Republican nomination for President in 1968. He narrowly defeated the former Mayor of Minneapolis and then vice president Hubert Horatio Humphrey and third party challenger George Wallace. Nixon inherited a United States deeply mired in a war in Vietnam which was becoming increasingly unpopular with the American people. Four years later when he ran for reelection the war was still going. However, what was tried to be passed off as a "third rate burglary" at the Democratic party headquarters at the Watergate apartment complex led to the unraveling of the Nixon presidency. Nixon crushed his Democratic opponent for President in 1972, George McGovern. It was all downhill from there. Less than two years later Richard Nixon resigned from the Presidency on August 10, 1974 and boarded a helicopter for his ocean front home in San Clemente. Nixon spent the last 20 years writing books and lending welcome advice on foreign policy to the Presidents who followed him in office.

He was a fighter, a fascinating man beset by some inner need to self destruct. On the westside of Los Angeles they named a freeway after him yet today his name has been taken off and it is known as the Marina Freeway, not the Richard M. Nixon freeway. He was one of only 42 people to serve our country as President and the only one who ever resigned while in office. Nixon conjures up more images for me than any other President. The poor boy born in Yorba Linda, California and raised in Whittier, California was to me the most interesting player on the political stage in the second half of the twentieth century. His history is our history. He rose from red baiter to be the first President to visit China and thawed relations with the Soviet Union. Goodbye President Nixon.

To The Editor:

I have been hearing a number of complaints about the job performance of Curry County Commissioner Peg Reagan. The most frequent is, "she did not vote the way I asked her to". This is followed by, "she keeps telling me about laws, regulations and the long term benefits of following the County Plan". The argument is summarized by, "I just wanted her to make this one exception for me".

Peg Reagan's behavior as Curry County Commissioner follows a pattern. It has a name; Tough Love. Peg makes decisions based on law to the over all benefit of the county as a whole. She requires citizens to cooperate with government and each other in seeking their personal land use goals. Peg Reagan is not completely impartial. I guess no one is. In her capacity as Commissioner, she has done me a personal favor. She voted against a pay raise for the County Commissioners. The other commissioners voted for the pay raise. The pay raise passed by a vote of two to one. Every month since that vote became effective Peg has written a check in the amount of her share of the raise to a recycling program at Driftwood school. This program is administered by Rick Hazard, a volunteer, who will soon try to expand it to other elementary schools in Curry County. As a former teacher and current citizen of Curry County, I consider this a personal favor. Ms. Tough Love puts her money where her mouth is. I get to vote for her. It makes me feel good!

Monster Weeds

by Sandra Elzman

This last weekend I headed out, armed with the weed eater, to reclaim my vegetable garden from the attack of the monster weeds.

I found the "deep beds" and added bone meal, lime and blood meal with manure, turned the soil and planted the seedlings I bought from B & B farm supply, celery, yellow pear tomatoes, red potatoes, chard, onions, cabbage, lettuce, etc. I planted the peas I had soaked in water overnight to get them to sprout quicker and some scarlet runner beans which I saved from the beautiful, prolific vines from last year.

To take care of the slugs who come to my yard for their spring convention I set out mayonnaise jar lids and fill them with cheap beer. It's so easy! They just crawl in and drink themselves to death. Sometimes I get 20 or 30 slugs in one jar lid. I set them next to the sprouting dahlias, too. If I don't the slugs get every leaf as they try to come up.

I also plant salad greens in a wooden box next to the kitchen door in really good soil. Then they grow fast and it's easy to step out the door and pick them while I'm making dinner.

Happy Gardening,

Sandi

Unending River

The U.S. Conference of Mayors survey of 314 of the largest American cities showed the cost to carry out 10 major federal programs in 1993 was $3.6 billion - nearly 12% of their annual budgets.

Similar findings show it costs county governments $4.8 billion a year to comply with just 12 of the many federal mandates.

Senator Jim Sasser (D-Tenn) has introduced the Federal Mandates Funding Act (S 1606) which would require that any U.S. law or regulation imposing a direct cost on local governments be accompanied by federal payment to help pay for it. If no cash is appropriated, the mandates on regulations would be unenforceable.

Representative Paul Gillmor (R-Ohio) has proposed a Constitutional amendment (House Joint Resolution 282) to end the practice of unfunded federal mandates.

Senator Hank Brown (R-Colo) introduced a similar bill (Senate Joint Resolution 148) to eliminate the federal government's ability to impose laws or regulations on counties or cities unless Congress provides the necessary funding to carry out the program.

Senator Orrin Hatch (R-Utah) stated "Federal Regulation will cost Americans an estimated $542 billion a year...a hidden tax that takes an average of $5,000 from every American household."

Can Americans continue to tolerate this type of unwarranted and costly interference in their daily lives by the federal government, and the potential for absolute federal domination?

Are these congressmen trying to tell us something about what is causing some of our local problems?

Can Port Orford, or any other city, pay out about 12% of its budget each year to meet federal mandates?

Can Curry County, or any other county, pay out about 25% of its yearly budget to meet the required mandates from Washington DC?

Just how much of the federal mandate costs are coming out of each Port Orford pocket?

Do you think your life has improved because of these federal mandates and regulations? Or do they sap the strength from our state, our county, our city, and our homes?

Respectfully,

Benjamin Freeman
Port Orford

To The Editor:

First of all we would like to respond to Mr. Lichtig's article in last weeks Port Orford News. He has defined for many of the readers in this area the importance of the Justice of the Peace position and the duties required. The knowledge or information available about small claims, civil actions, arrest warrants and other actions is very important to this position. If specific information about a claim, dispute or action is not clearly covered by the knowledge of the Justice of the Peace, this information is available in the Oregon Special Courts Bench book or other books and guidelines concerning law practices. No one in our opinion has all of the knowledge to cover every circumstance that arises. This position, and we would like to stress again the importance of the law, does not require a law degree. Of the 32 Justices of the Peace listed in Oregon, 23 are not law degreed. That's about 77%. In researching the election abstracts for Curry County dating back to 1962 and talking with the Oregon Bar Association, only 1 Justice of the Peace in this district has been a lawyer. From the very beginning and creation of this position, non-law degreed individuals have been performing the duties of Justices of the Peace and with the same professionalism and integrity as law degreed individuals.

Our candidate, Mr. Loan, has been a business manager for approximately 12 years. He has managed and consulted start up businesses to major manufacturing companies. As Manufacturing Planning Manager and Master Planner of a 3.5 billion dollar a year company, he was very involved in business and corporate law decisions. He was involved in State and Federal regulations regarding Equal Opportunity laws, personnel and laws and restrictions regarding US and Foreign trade agreements, consumer and vendor regulations as well as contract negotiation rights and guidelines.

With the background of our candidate, the management of business and people and the fact he grew up here knowing the people and the industry of this area, we feel he can perform the duties required in this position without fail. Mr. Loan has the people of this district at the top of his list and wants to help make a difference. So as far as making tough decisions, his background is proof of this !!

Letter to the Editor:

Why is Richard AuFranc being challenged for the Justice of the Peace position? I've heard no reason other than his opponent is a nice young mans some people have known all his life who grew up here and wants the job. Heck, I'd like it myself.

I've heard no complaint about AuFranc, in fact just the opposite. People who have gone before him, that I've spoken with, say he's fair, knowledgeable and understands fully the law he's entrusted to uphold. Where is his opponent going to get the training in this field for which he has few qualifications, should he be elected?

Is this a popularity contest? Shall we choose the young home-grown inexperienced candidate or the proven one with whom we have no quarrel? Let us cast our votes for the re-election of Richard AuFranc, Justice of the Peace for Northern Curry County.

Thank You,

Best of Success

by Evan Kramer

The New To You clothing store is now, as the sign on the door says, "closed for good". Cecil Ashdown gave her little clothing store a great run for the money but has decided to go out of business. She and Betty Digby started the store three or so years ago and have been our neighbors in the Fun Zone building. Betty sold her share out to Cecil and went into the real estate business. The Nine Patch Antique store, also located in the Fun Zone building is moving to a new location effective May 1. Barry is moving his antique store into the ground floor of Gwendolyn's Bed and Breakfast. Gwendolyn has deecided to close the bed and breakfast for now but will continue to use part of the building and concentrate on her jam business. She told me she had met a lot of very interesting people over the years who stayed at her place. We wish the best of success to all these people in their new endeavors.

Letter to the Editor:

In my position as a Commissioner in Coos County I have had the opportunity to work with T.V. Skinner on many projects and programs. T.V. has proven himself to be knowledgeable, experienced and, above all, completely honest.

I believe that although T.V. has a deep concern for the environment, as a logical thinking individual, he realizes that people are equally as important, and must be considered in all decisions relating to our natural resources.

His concern for the people of his County, their future, and their livelihood is genuine, and it is my sincere hope that the people of Curry County elect him as their County Commissioner.

Attorney Howard Lichtig of Port Orford is chairman of the Law Day section of the Curry County Bar Association, and has arranged the various events for student participation.

Participating high school students are those who have expressed a particular interest in some aspect of the law. Law

Day presents an opportunity for the students to receive first-hand exposure to the workings of the court and criminal justice system.

Circuit Judge Hugh C. Downer and District Court Judge Richard K. Mickelson have agreed to change courtrooms for the morning of May 2nd, so that students can have opportunity to watch actual criminal proceedings as they are processed in the ordinary course of court business. Students will also observe a demonstration of the polygraph (lie detector machine), put on by the Curry County Sheriff's Department. The students will also tour jail facilities, communications department, patrol cars and the like. The director of Juvenile Probation for Curry County will speak to the students about juvenile law. Speakers from the Curry County District Attorney's Office and the public defenders office will also discuss various aspects of criminal law with the students. Time allowing, there will be a demonstration by the Curry County Sheriff's Department of its canine unit.

Students will be treated to lunch by the Curry County Bar Association. Detective Mark Creighton from the Curry County Sheriff's Department will be the featured speaker at lunch. It is anticipated that between 35 and 40 students from the three schools will attend.

This is the second year the Curry County Bar Association has sponsored Law Day.
