Homeward Bound By Valerie Kramer

Day 14 (Aug. 28) - Coventry - Bladon - Oxford - London

We start the day with a scenic drive through the rolling Cotswolds, dotted with the golden sandstone of thatched cottages. Then on to Bladon where we see Sir Winston Churchill's grave in the little churchyard, before arriving in Oxford. Here we visit one of the famous Oxford Colleges, (or the Sheldonian Theatre when the colleges are closed), then we drive back to London via Runnymede and Windsor Castle. (FB)

No doubt you've heard of Lady Godiva. She was born about 1000AD and died in 1067. According to the legend, her husband, The Earl of Leofric imposed heavy taxes on his people and, when he would not relent, the people asked Lady Godiva to intercede for them. She spoke to the Earl and he, no doubt sarcastically, said he'd lower taxes when she rode thru the streets naked. This she did but nobody watched. All the townspeople lined the streets facing away from her. Being a man of his word, however lightly given, the Earl reduced the taxes. Later this story was amended to include a single man, Tom, who stole a peep and was blinded for so doing. He became known as Peeping Tom.

The actual facts of her ride are few and scanty. The lady is a real person. If she did make a ride thru town, she may have done so not naked, but wearing servant's clothes. There is a statue of Lady Godiva near the town center and nearby a large clock. On the hour Lady Godiva appears from one door, rides across the front of the clock tower then back in a second door. Meanwhile Peeping Tom pops out of a window above her with his eyes bulging out on springs.

It is also claimed that St George, the Patron Saint of England, who slew the dragon, was born in Coventry.

We visited the Coventry cathedral. Only the shell of the old cathedral remains. It was firebombed in world war II. A modern cathedral has been built, linked to the old one. Despite (or perhaps because of) the constant reminder of the old cathedral, the people here are dedicated to promoting peace. We didn't stay at this stop long but it was quite an emotional experience to sit in the old, burned out cathedral and imagine its past. The new cathedral is also renowned for housing the largest tapestry in the world.

During the late 1300's a duel between the Duke of Norfolk and the Duke of Hereford almost took place. The dispute arose after one of the Dukes was said to have made treasonable remarks against King Richard II. Up to 10,000 soldiers, gathered to witness the event, but at the last moment the duel was halted and both Dukes were banished.

The Duke of Hereford, Henry Bolingbroke, returned, captured the king and forced him to abdicate. After killing the king, the Duke took over the monarchy as King Henry IV. This treacherous act led to the War of the Roses. Henry IV's son, Henry V, in later years won the Battle of Agincourt. So the duel that nearly happened at Gosford Green in Coventry may have been a turning point in English history.

To learn more about Coventry, check out <http://www.ecosaurus.co.uk/coventry> on the world wide web.

We came within a couple of miles of Loxley and Valerie started thinking of Robin Hood but then she found out that he was in Locksley - a different part of England entirely.

An unimposing post stood beside the road at the edge of Shipston On Stour. It's only features were a couple of heavy hooks. We learned that this was part of the early mail system. Rather than have horses clatter into town in the night disturbing sleeping residents, the post was erected outside town and outgoing mail was hung in a bag from one hook while incoming mail was left on the other. From this we get our Post Office and phrases such as, "to post a letter."

Homeward Bound

We briefly visited Sir Winston Churchill's grave in his family's plot in Bladon. He was offered a space in Westminster Abbey or St. Paul's Cathedral but decided he didn't like some of the company in those places.

The first college was established in Oxford in the 13th century. The English school system is hard to explain (or understand.) Each of the many colleges in Oxford is independent in many ways and interconnected in others. Suffice it to say that this Oxford is very much a college town!

We toured Brasenose college then had time for shopping and lunch.

By the end of the day we were back at the Forum Hotel in London from which the tour had started. We had travelled more than 2,200 miles.

We still had some daylight so we took a taxi to Victoria Station and arrived just as a hailstorm hit. Victoria Station's roof leaks big time! Railfan Evan was in hog heaven at this famous train/bus station. There are also many stores in this multi-level building which served as an air raid shelter during the war. After looking around, we had dinner across the street at Shakespears Fish & Chips. We then took a #52 and a #74 bus back to the hotel. At last we got to ride on the top level of one of London's famous red double-deckers!

Day 15 (Aug. 29) - London - USA
Farewell today as you transfer to the airport for your return flight to America.

We rode the Trafalgar shuttle bus to Heatherow Airport for our flight back to the United States. Unfortunately, we had to kill several hours in the airport before our flight was due to leave. On arrival at JFK Airport in New York, my folks caught a flight to Cleveland, Ohio. Evan & I checked into the Airport Hilton to rest for our flight the next morning. The Hilton was a real dump despite the room costing $158/night. The elevator didn't work properly, wallpaper was peeling, and there was graffiti on some buildings. The room was, however clean and the bed comfortable. I was too tired to care much.

The next day found us on our flight to Portland and another overnight stay then finally we drove home and arrived in the early evening on August 31, tired, but happy to be home and eager to share our tales. We're glad so many of you have enjoyed reading about it.

Survey of Hwy. 101 Features

The Port Orford Community Response Team (CRT) needs your help in identifying special features visible from Highway 101 in the Northern Curry County area, from the Coos County border to Frankport, just north of Ophir. Please drop off your suggestions in the drop boxes located at the Post Offices in Port Orford, Sixes, and Langlois, at the Langlois Market, or at Buck's Sentry Market or the Downtown Fun Zone in Port Orford.

The features we are looking for include scenic (views and landscapes that best represent the intrinsic character of our area), natural (geologic formations, fossils, wetlands, nesting areas, etc.), historic (such as cemeteries or buildings that create an appreciation of past human activities), cultural (festivals, traditions, markets, etc. that show our lifestyle and customs), archeological (sites, artifacts, structures that represent past human life), and recreational (landscape that supports hiking, rafting, bird watching, etc.).

The Oregon Department of Transportation (ODOT) is using this input from communities along Highway 101 to decide whether or not to apply for designation of Highway 101 as a National Scenic Byway and to develop a Pacific Coast Scenic Byway Management Plan. National Scenic Byway designation for Highway 101 would open the door for possible Federal funding to improve and provide access to the important features and would be expected to increase tourism along 101. Highway 101 is already designated an Oregon Scenic Byway.

For more information, call 332-0131 during the day.

One more thing about October the volunteers who worked October 31 were: Loraine Hass, Greta Carver, Marge Kyle, Kay Neal and Norma Ellis. Now that's it for October.

Next was the birthday party November 3. It turned out real nice. The volunteers who made it that way were: Norma Ellis, Jane Black, Loraine Hass, Peigi and Clair Stahl doing dishes. On November the triple A had a meeting and luncheon. I found out what it means (Area Agency on Aging-). Those working were Thelma

Just wanted to say a word about these volunteers - there are some who take care of the office, answer phones and questions: Bobbetta Kron, Harold Trimble and Dutch Heinauer - fill in - what would we do without these volunteers. Now I want to remind you - the Caroler's are on the table first as you come in the center - they were made by Leo Welsh and are going to be raffled at the Bazaar December 7. The tickets are $.50 or 3 for $1. They can be bought at the center now. I hope I didn't leave anyone or anything out. See you at the center.

Students Watch Wetlands At Work

Five of Mrs. Shely's Driftwood students tested water quality in one of Garrison Lake's urban wetlands last Tuesday, Oct. 22nd. The students included Trisha Bazor, Brandi Peabody, Joey Compton, Brent Macleod, and Anthony Conaway. Dave Wilken, Chairman of the Port Orford Watershed Council, accompanied the students. Ellen Warring shared Watershed Council duties with Wilken in providing a meaningful experience for the students and then later sharing lab duties in testing the samples.

The student-scientists collected water, took temperature and depth readings, and photographed waterside vegetation at four sites on a walking investigation of one of the Lake's wetland fingers. In addition, they measured the water's turbidity, using equipment purchased by the City of Port Orford at the request of the Watershed Council. The enthusiasm and good manners of the students, along with their questions and observations, made it a rewarding experience for the escorts, and the useful data gathered showed all involved how our wetlands purify water on its way to our lake.

This is a monthly activity throughout the year, and these students were the second group to make the field trip. A month ago Rick Hazard and Ellen Waring took Jacquelyn Aiello, Gretchen Smith, Shane Alexander, Robert Ells, and Matt Wayne through the same process, except they didn't get rained on, as was the case last week.

The next outing will be on Tuesday, November 26th, when Watershed Council members will collect water from the six "high school" sites and the next group of Driftwood students will again sample their four locations.

Anyone wanting to assist or observe the collection or testing should call Pat Rhodes or Ellen Warring.

I Have Met the Enemy

By Donna L. Hoffmann

Whew! I've just finished doing battle with whiteflies and scale in our greenhouse. (And you thought Master Gardeners were impervious to critters. That might be if they could read our certificate, but ours seem to be illiterate) Since they were in the greenhouse, I definitely did not want to use chemicals, so I looked up in "Common Sense Pest Control" what was needed, which I thought I'd share with you. For the whiteflies, it suggested using an insecticidal soap used as directed on the label for greenhouse situations. For the scale, there were two suggestions I used. I wiped each leaf with rubbing alcohol for the soft bodied scale and used the insecticidal soap again, spraying the entire plant, tops of leaves and undersides too. What with our trip to New York, building our house, etc., I hadn't been checking our plants as close as I should have. All four of our citrus trees had scale. One of the easiest ways to check for scale is to watch for any ant activity. Ants move scale around and use them the same way they use aphids - for the sweet sticky "dew" they secrete. I'll have to be much more diligent. The battle is not quite over, but the troops have been greatly reduced!

NEWS FLASH...I last wrote about the holly leaf and twig blight and here's the latest from O.S.U. Use Microcrop, applying to the branches in mid-October and again in January. This according to Melodie Putman, Plant Clinic Diagnostician from O. S.U. Microcrop is a fungicide, readily available from most nurseries and garden centers.

Until the next time - good gardening!

Dear Mr. Postmaster

Have I received any mail?
I'm "doin' time" in Leavenworth...
A lonely, federal jail.

The Judge took it seriously
When I sold my P.O. Box...

So, I'm writin' you a letter,
Askin' for leftover mail...
It's not likely I'm leavin' here...
Nobody posted my bail.

Send me colored catalogues...
Junk mail that is tossed away...
Anyone's forgotten letters...
My jailer says it's O.K.

My address is a number...
Inmate two, six, zero, ten...
I regret selling my mailbox...

Letter to the Editor,

Why is a Genie like a Jenny? Answer:
Both will only pull for you.

Never holler ho in a hard haul or a horse race nor whoa after a trade or on a steep grade.

Never buy nine negligee's unless you need some.

Whiners who say the end is near often have girl friends who agree over the shortspan.

Gentlemen prefer blondes, adore redheads, admire frostys and need brunettes.

Never trust a meddling, muddling, or medaling general who uses an adjective before war.

Never on leave leave a lovely, lonely,
lady alone with some port in any port.

Never trust a politician who runs for, in or about a public office.

Never trust a peace officer walking the day shift carrying a four foot nightstick.

Always trust a peace officer working graveyard armed to the teeth with a smile.

Never show an ounce of respect to a butcher in a spattered robe or a cowering judge wearing one of the same in shame
while fining a migrant neighbor way dos mas.

Never assume you're a drunk or someone else is if there's a pulse.

Never go through a porthole with a dull cutlass in your mouth or take a job on a boat with a shiny handle on the deck pump.

Don't be too quick with a stick to give the hour to a surly guide with one too, who can't or won't give you the time on a sunny day.

November promises to be a busy time at our library. Aside from our usual children's programs we are going to have a Holiday Craft Day on the Fourth Friday. Many local crafts will be available, so start your holiday shopping on Friday the 22nd from 10am to 4pm.

We are also going to do a little story telling on Saturday, November 23 at 3pm during our Family StoryFest. Gather the family, bring a thick blanket to lounge on and come enjoy age old stories told by tellers of all ages.

We have received a big fat order of new books just in time for a good rainy weather read. Stop by and pick up the latest by Anne Perry, Anne Rice, Vince Kohler or Marion Zimmer Bradley, to name but a few.

Remember, we have Pre-school Story Time at 10am on Thursdays, After-school Story Time at 3:15pm on Fridays, and our Recreation Program on Saturdays from 3 to 5pm.

CRT Group to Set Priorities

The Community Response Team (CRT) invites all members of the community to the CRT meeting on Thursday evening, November 14 to participate in setting priorities among the projects identified in the Strategic Plan. The meeting from 7 to 9 PM at the Port Orford Senior Center at 1536 Jackson will be preceded by an informal open discussion from 6 to 7PM. Refreshments will be available.

The CRT Strategic Plan, which was originally commissioned by the Port Orford City Council has now been adopted by the Council as the city's economic development plan. Highway 101 beautification and fund raising for community projects will also be major items on the agenda.

For further information call Nancy Dowdy at 332-0131.

A specialist in family practice, PA Gosvener will perform a full spectrum of services, from well baby checks and annual exams for men and women to dermatological procedures and minor surgeries. He will treat problems in gynecology, hypertension, thyroid, orthopedics lacerations and many other areas He is an experienced emergency medical technician and instructor with the American Heart Association-sanctioned course in acute cardiac life support An Air force physician assistant since 1991 Gosvener is also experienced Treating burns and related traumatic injuries

"The model of a physician assistant is that of a physician," Gosvener explains. "We take a patient's history, we examine and we treat. We work in partnership with physicians and under their supervision" At Curry Family Medical, he says he will work with distant supervision, referring, patients to the emergency room

if they require the services of physician, or consulting with specialists when needed

The primary purpose of a physician assistant is to increase accessibility to care and provide improved services for patients. he says, adding that he is anxious to provide regular hours for clinic patients.

Gosvener says that his Air Force retirement ceremony was held Wednesday' Oct. 30. By dusk Thursday, Oct. 31, he was home in Port Orford with his wife, Judy, and their children. Katie and Philip II. His family had relocated to Curry County earlier this year.

As a former delegate to the House of Delegates of the American Academy of Physician Assistants, Gosvener is at ease speaking before groups. Local organizations wishing to recruit him as a speaker can make arrangements through Curry Family Medical.

To make appoints with Gosvener or for other information, phone the clinic at (541) 332-3861.

Curry County voters appear to have agreed with statewide voters on measures 26-29, 35-43, and 45-46 and disagreed on measures 30-35, 44, 47 and 48 though the percentages vary, in some cases considerably. However you feel about the outcome, if you voted, give yourself a pat on the back. You've earned the right to complain. If you didn't vote, give yourself a pat lower down and make sure you vote in the next election!

Election Results

Curry County still had two to three thousand votes to count, but here are the results so far. Nor are the state or federal votes completely counted. Note that in many cases, a measure that wins (or loses) in Curry County may still lose (or win) at the state or national level. To save space, we did not report candidates who got an insignificant percentage of the vote.
