Fishermen's Memorial Dedicated

Black Cod Season Opens By Evan Kramer

The 1999 black cod season, or "derby" as it is also known, began at 3:00am Monday morning as Port Orford fishermen headed out to sea. They were allowed to start casting their baited hooks for black cod at noon on Monday. By Tuesday morning fishermen were bringing back the first of the black cod to the dock at the Port of Port Orford.

This year the season lasts for a total of nine days. Port Manager Gayle Paige shared with me some statistics on the black cod harvest the previous two years. In 1998 fishermen landed 235,000 pounds of black cod with a value of $262,756. In 1997 fishermen landed 646,000 pounds of black cod with a value of $1.2 million. Paige said that through June of this year there has been nearly one million dollars worth of product landed at the Port.

Fishermen participating in the black cod derby work around the clock until they fill their allowed catch. Based on their past performance, the fishermen are grouped into one of three tiers and their permissible catch is limited according to the tier they are in. I spoke with Wayne Streeter of Carvalho Fisheries who is one of the three fish buyers on the dock. (The others are Hallmark Fisheries and PPS.) Wayne gave me the prices Carvalho is paying for black cod. They range from $1.40 for 1-2 pound fish to $2.10 for 3-4 pound fish and $2.80 per pound for fish over 7 pounds. The weight is determined after a "J" cut is done on the fish and the head removed. Streeter said the fish is sold to Japan.

The fish are caught on hooks baited with frozen squid. There are about 160 hooks per line or tub full. One side effect of black cod season is many people are employed baiting the hooks and make $8 a tub.

Next year's black cod season will see major changes with fishermen going to IQF's (individual quotas) and they will be able to catch their quota over a six month period of time.

Blessing of the Fleet

The Port Orford Fishermen's Association and the Women's Fishery Network hosted a dedication ceremony for the Fishermen's Memorial last Saturday afternoon. The Fishermen's Memorial is located next to the boat parking area known as the "Boneyard." There are several parts to the Memorial including several dozen bricks with various names engraved in them laid along the outside of a concrete slab. Attached to the concrete slab are three benches and the centerpiece which is a ship's wheel. The wheel has not been permanently fixed to the concrete slab but was temporarily placed there for the ceremony. Women's Fishery Network representative, Cecil Ashdown, said one element of the fishermen's memorial that hasn't been completed yet is the marble slab listing the names of the fishermen whose lives were lost at sea from the 1890's to the present.

The dedication was well attended by members of the fishing community and general public. It began with posting of the colors and the pledge of allegiance led by Frank Smith and Boy Scout Troop 101 members Ian Ranney, Shane Rangel, Justin Merryman and Jason Royal. Leesa Cobb spoke next and said the intention of the Memorial was to honor those fishermen lost at sea by placing their names on a plaque. She reminded people to take a look at the old wooden dock as it was going to be coming down soon to make way for a new dock. Christen then sang Amazing Grace. Gary Anderson gave a moving prayer and was followed by Rob Ashdown reading a poem. Pastor Doug Jamieson concluded the moving ceremony with a blessing of the fleet.

Doctors Resign

Curry Health District Administrator Randy Scholten has informed this newspaper that Doctors Donald Venes and Victoria Webb are resigning from the Curry Family Medical Clinic in Port Orford effective September 17. The other doctor working at the clinic, long time Port Orford physician Dr. Thomas Pitchford has expressed interest in leaving the clinic at the end of this year. At this point he will stay and help the clinic for a while longer during the interim.

Curry Family Medical Clinic manager Judy Scholten said Venes and Webb had written a letter of resignation to the clinic in July giving them 60 day notice. They stated that things weren't working out and it wasn't a good fit. They will be pursuing other endeavors. The clinic is currently looking for another doctor.

Blanco Step Dancers

On Saturday, July 31, the Blanco Step Dancers won the KURY $1,000 talent competition at the Curry County Fair in Gold Beach. Dancers Reann Blount, Lindsay Dougherty, Jennifer Greene, Megan Hughes, Ciara Meeks, and Leah Rhodes are sixth and seventh graders from the Langlois and Port Orford Communities. They showed their fancy footwork to the music of "Cripple Creek" and were cheered on by an appreciative crowd. Fair Manager Ron Crook called them "...outstanding. I'm sure they're going to do us proud at the state fair. The crowd just loved them. The dancers were right in sync when they performed. It gave you goose bumps to watch them."

If you missed their performance at the Curry County Fair, you can see them dance on Tuesday evening, August 24, 7pm, at the Langlois Lions Club. They will be joined by Scottish Fiddle Champion Hanneke Cassel for an evening of dance and fiddle music. Donations for the Step Dancers will be accepted to help fund their trip to the State Fair in Salem on September 3. The Langlois Lions have generously donated their building for the performance.

The original group of dancers was formed in 1994 and their first performance was at the Hult Center, in Eugene, for the Oregon Children's Choral Festival. Since that time the group has evolved into the Blanco Step Dancers, ages 10 through 12, who perform at various community events, seasonal celebrations, retirement communities, and festivals. This past April they were selected to perform with the Mason Williams Band at the annual Hult Center Choral Festival, which was filmed by OPB.

Mark your calendars for Tuesday night, August 24, and come out and enjoy this group of talented young dancers perform to the lively Celtic music of fiddler Hanneke Cassel.

Science or Dignity Graeme Graydon

For several years before I left New Zealand, I was director of a small museum which presented one thousand years of the history of the local Maori people. They were never one people but rather members of one tribe or another always fighting each other for the most trivial reasons. My own farm and many others in the district had been the scenes of full-scale battles, the latest fought about 1820. When human remains of these conflicts were found, it would spark bickering between the tribes over who had jurisdiction over them. So when a farmer inadvertently uncovered human bones, the police would call me to "take care of them". I never found a proper burial. It was always someone who had died in that spot from some kind of violence and the bones were all that were left of the ancient drama. There was no way to know which tribe the bones belonged to, so after I had made my investigation, I discretely and respectfully buried them in places known only to me with appropriate ceremony.

However, there was one time that tested me beyond anything I had known. The museum received word that a farmer was willing to allow us to check out an undisturbed, pre-European battle site on his hill-farm. All battle sites become "tapu" or holy to the Maoris; once the killing is done - no Maori, even today would return to such a place. We were led to an exquisite, fortified village in a bush-clad gully. I could see the paths, the trenches, palisades and home sites. Our team got to work, getting an overview, taking some measurements. I climbed down below the fortifications to a dear mountain stream and saw little heaps of human bones everywhere, each one being the remains of one human. All the skulls were fractured or smashed in. The evidence revealed a secure community that had been surprised, run down and murdered in one terrible morning raid. It was awesome to stand in such a beautiful place surrounded by the remains of people who, either dead or dying, had been thrown from the ramparts above.

One of our team called out that he had discovered the food storage pit, an ingenious root cellar found in all village sites. It was a chamber hollowed out in a hillside with a very narrow entrance at its 94 roof". I squeezed through the narrow hole trusting the guys outside to hold my feet and hung down into it. My flash-light revealed the semi-preserved bodies of several people. The last body thrown in, I judged to be a woman. Her long black hair was matted with blood from a head wound. I felt such a surge of compassion for this woman - I wanted to reach out and touch her hair tenderly, but I disturbed nothing, recorded as much as I could visually and signaled to be pulled out. Scientifically, it was my job to investigate, to measure every trace of human endeavor. But we didn't. Nothing was gathered, no photos taken, no report made - nothing published I was unable to disregard the enormity of the abuse to these people. I could feel their sad presence still, unaware that they had died, waiting for the next attack which never came. We left them there in that quiet place, to the ferns, the stream and the birds of the New Zealand bush - at least I thought I did, but that's another story.

Letter to the Editor,

The Point Orford Heritage Society recently acquired the rights to a Decommissioned Coast Guard 36-foot motor launch thanks to the cooperation of the Bandon Port Commission.

Attempts to bring this historic vessel home have been frustrating, to say the least. Problems have cropped up all along the way. The big problem is the bronze keel. The ship was designed as self-righting, which is a very essential feature for a life saving vessel, as more likely than not the ship is working under adverse conditions in heavy surf removing persons who find themselves struggling for life against hostile elements.

What this means is that the ship is very heavy, almost 10,000 lbs. Which translates into the fact that it takes more than just hopping into a pickup and hauling it 20 some miles down 101 to its home here in Port Orford.

The problems seem to get bigger the closer it gets to actually getting the ship here. Once the ship finally gets down here another problem raises its ugly head. Understand that this ship was a gift from the Port of Bandon to the Point Orford Heritage Society, which is to say that it belongs to the people of Port Orford and the Society is entrusted with deciding how and where to display it.

It should go without saying that it would be best to have it in the near proximity of the refurbished Coast Guard building. The parks department has suggested locations that are far from the main buildings which in my opinion would not benefit the proposed museum.

The meeting of the Point Orford Heritage Society board happens on the fourth Tuesday of the month and I want to encourage anyone with an opinion or feel support for having the vessel positioned where it would benefit the Society to come to the meeting and voice their concern.

Everyone who has an interest in the restoration or displaying of this grand historic vessel should attend the meeting on Wednesday the 24 of August, 1999 to express your opinion whether you are a member or are interested in the preservation of this ship.

If you have an interest in helping in the restoring of the motor launch please let Frank Cramer at 332-2113 and sign on the crew.

Letter to the Editor,

The advertising for the upcoming Arts and Seafood Festival is just about done. Folks on the coast from Eureka to Florence and east from Medford to Eugene will hear about it on one of 9 radio stations, read about it in one of the 45 newspapers that received a press release, or catch the ad that will appear in one of 7 newspapers. People visiting chambers of commerce up and down the coast can pick up a brochure, while visitors to area businesses will notice the colorful table top festival notices. This advertising, at a cost of just over $2,000, is meant to bring people to North Curry not only to enjoy the festival and the natural beauty, but to patronize local businesses. On behalf of the 1999 Port Orford Arts and Seafood Festival Partners, I thank the following businesses for sponsoring this year's festival:

Buck's Sentry, Port Orford Press, Sea Crest Motel, Coast Candle, Castaway Motel, Paradis Cafe, Coos Curry Electric, Klamath 1st Federal, Home-by-the-Sea, Chetco Credit Union, Rick Cook Gallery, CA Smith Real Estate, Wheelhouse Restaurant, Siskiyou Coast Realty, Wooden Nickel, Port Orford Pottery, Quilter's Corner, Port Orford Rotary, Campbell Realty, Downtown Fun Zone, Port Orford RV Village, NC Electronics, The Dock Tackle, Salsa Rita's, Western Builders, Port & Starborad, Bonnie's Ice Cream, and Pepsi.

The Festival could not be so successful if not for your support.

Letter to the Editor,

Sunday afternoon I took a drive out to Cape Blanco with some out-of-town relatives. There were some gentlemen out there (near the gate to the lighthouse) flying some very interesting planes. They were remote control gliders! They used no power other than the wind. It was amazing how precisely they could maneuver the planes.

I talked to a couple of fliers who were from the Bay Area of California. They said Cape Blanco was one of the best places to practice their hobby. Then they told me there was to be a group meet at Cape Blanco this coming weekend. They said there would be at least 75 pilots attending... some from "overseas". They also told me about a local person who builds these gliders. They couldn't remember his name, but they said he was listed in the phone book under "Birdworks".

My cousin and I were fascinated by the planes. We sat there and watched them for at least an hour and a half. Unfortunately I have to attend a wedding in Portland this coming weekend! I was so taken by watching a couple of planes, I can't imagine 50-60 of them in the sky at the same time. I thought the glider meet might make a good story for the paper. Have you ever heard of this before? I was totally unaware that anything like this was happening here (or anywhere else for that matter).

Cheers,

Chuck Mitchell

Recreation Fee Protest

Nearly 180 coast-lovers braved threatening weather to protest federal recreational fees for access to the shore at three coast locations on Saturday. Organized by the Oregon Shores Conservation Coalition, the protesters were there to express opposition to the Recreation Fee Demonstration Program, which has imposed charges throughout the Siuslaw National Forest, for the entire Oregon Dunes National Recreation Area, and at Yaquina Head.

The coastal protests were part of a national Fee Protest Day against the federal program, with hundreds of demonstrators turning out at more than 30 locations around the country.

Some 90 protesters were on hand at the Dunes Overlook, waving signs and handing out flyers. Many took turns at a bullhorn, giving personal testimony against the fees. One was North Bend Mayor Lee Golder, who argued that "Fee-Demo," as the program is called, is harming tourism and economic development in his area. "I get calls weekly, sometimes daily, at city hall, at work and at home, from citizens who are irate about the fees," Golder said.

"This is a battle in which public education is the key," said Oregon Shores Conservation Coalition's Phillip Johnson. "Most people don't know about the hidden agenda behind the Fee-Demo program.

They don't realize that this is the beginning of an effort by the commercial recreation industries to privatize public lands, to turn them over to more and more developed recreation run by private concessionaires who want to turn nature into a theme park.

"When people realize that this could lead to commercializing the very experience of visiting the natural world," Johnson added, "we will see overwhelming public opposition to fees charged for access to our public lands."

Free Immunizations

Is your child up to date on his or her immunizations? School will be starting in a couple of weeks and your child will be required to have certain immunizations before school starts. Children without the required immunizations will be excluded from Oregon schools, childcare centers,

Head Start and preschools until they receive and have documenting of these required vaccines.

The Health Department is offering a "Free Immunization Clinic" for children age 0 - 18. Wednesday August 25, from 9-12 and 1-4pm in Gold Beach. Thursday August 26, from 9-12 and 1-4 in Port Orford and Brookings clinics. Please bring your child's immunization record and insurance card with you.

If you have private insurance or have OHP we will bill your insurance company. If you have no insurance coverage the immunizations are free to you.

This is a perfect time to get your kids up-to-date before school starts. Please call your doctor or local Curry County Health Department for more information about immunizations in Port Orford 332-4041, Gold Beach 247-7011.

Letter to the Editor,

I am writing this letter in support of the proposed law enforcement levy which is on the ballot for September 21, 1999.

In the three years that I have been in office, I have watched the numbers in law enforcement budgets dwindle while spending on other programs increases.

When I campaigned for office, I promised that I would be tough on drugs. After building a team with local public safety officers and their professional assistance, we have been putting drug distributors and manufacturers into the prison system at a rate ten times that of my predecessors. This is addition to maintaining a full county jail.

Additionally there is a major problem in the area of child and spousal abuse in the county. This has grown to a magnitude to where my office has added an additional abuse advocate and designated a deputy district attorney to specialize in this area. This is being paid for with grant funds.

However, these functions may cease to be available if the sheriff's levy doesn't pass. The amount of time necessary to investigate these and other crimes is growing while the resources are decreasing. Increasing the number of road deputies will help insure a good safe environment for all of us. The small increase in our property tax rates will be more than offset by an increase in property values and the lowering of our theft and vandalism insurance costs.

I encourage you to study the pending levy, calculate exactly the impact (both pro and con) on your personal life, and vote FOR peace of mind in September.

Sincerely,

Patrick Foley, District Attorney

Langlois Public Library News by Tobe Porter, Library Director

We're over the top! I am extremely happy to announce that, thanks to many generous donations, this week we reached our goal of raising $5,000. In fact, as of 8/13/99, we have received $5,645. Who ever said Friday the 13th is bad luck!

This outpouring of support for the new library is just wonderful. It's been a very long, hard road we've travelled, and it's heartening to know our community is still dedicated to having a bigger library. We have applied for $18,000 from private foundations, and will approach large corporate donors before applying for the last, big grant. We could not do this without local support. Thank you.

I do hope everyone interested in the project will come to the library's open house on Thursday, August 19th from 5:00-7:00pm. The building design will be on display and library and foundation board members will be on hand to discuss the project. I will be there to bask in the wonder of it all.

All this talk of a new library in no way interferes with the day to day business of the "Little Library that Could." We have new books, one of which is written by Sneaky Pie Brown for those in the know, and Assistant Director Jennifer Harrison and I are cooking up some exciting new children's programs to start this fall.

Chamber Speaker By Jay Stoler

The Port Orford Chamber of Commerce met last Wednesday at Bartlett's Café for their monthly board meeting. President Jay Stoler welcomed new Chamber Manager Mechelle Billings to the team and then got down to business with the board. Highlights of the meeting were as follows:

The Board discussed the pricing structure for promotional inserts into the Chamber brochure. The board agreed that in light of rising costs to the Chamber the new rates would be $35.00 for a name, address and phone number and $25 for the first additional line of copy and $20 for each additional line thereafter. Chamber members will receive a 10% discount off the insert rates. Brochure insert advertising is open to any and all businesses in the greater Port Orford area.

School superintendent Dick Wold was nominated to temporarily fill the vacancy created when John Phillips moved.

The board discussed next year's advertising plan and strategic plan and will research into both for the next meeting.

The Chamber will host a membership meeting on Monday, August 23, from noon to 1:00pm at the Wheelhouse Restaurant. The guest speaker will be Ed McQuade.

Letter to the Editor,

We would like to thank everyone who helped Keith after his accident on his bike.

Thank you very much to the girl who picked him up and took him to the clinic to get help. "Thank you"

We would also like to tell all parents and kids the importance of wearing a bike helmet. They save lives, just ask the Pace brothers, Keith and Kyle. They both have been saved by wearing their bicycle helmets.

So please parents and kids wear your helmets, they're worth it, they save lives.

Pace Family,
Dave, Karen, Kyle, Keith

"A child is a person who is going to carry on what you have started. He is going to sit where you are sitting and when you are gone, attend to those things which you think are important. You may adopt all the policies you please, but how they will be carried out depends on him. He will assume control of your cities, states and nations. He is going to move in and take over your churches, schools, universities and corporations. All your books are going to be judged or condemned by him. The fate of humanity is in his hands. So it might be well to pay him some attention."

Construction of the new dock at the Port will begin any day now. A construction contract has been awarded to Laskey-Clifton Corporation in the amount of $4,844,392 for the replacement dock. The company is headquartered in Reedsport. They were the contractor who installed the new raw water line for the City of Port Orford from Hubbard Creek to the Deady Street Reservoir. This is a huge public works project for Port Orford and one the whole town will be watching.
