Council Applies for Grant By Evan Kramer

The Port Orford City Council conducted a public hearing followed by a special session last Tuesday night for the purpose of proceeding with a grant application for the sewer outfall replacement.

The issue regarded applying for a community development block grant from the Oregon Economic and Community Development Department (OECDD). The City is requesting $750,000 in community development block grant funds. Another $150,000 would come from the sewer construction fund. This is money which has already been collected. $440,000 would be raised from the sewer and water users in the City of Port Orford and $500,000 would come from a water/wastewater grant for a total project cost of $1,840,000. This amount is for the ocean outfall at South Agate Beach using directional drilling. If the geotechnical investigation using jet probing at Agate Beach shows this isn't feasible the alternative is an ocean outfall at South Agate Beach bolting the pipe to rock surfaces at the South End of Agate Beach. The projected construction cost for this alternative is $2,422,000. These figures are "soft" in that are already nearly one year old and costs have gone up.

The council was presented with the minutes and recommendations of the waste water committee by chairman Ernie Gordon. They had met on Monday afternoon. The committee recommended by a 7-0 vote that the $440,000 from Port Orford water and sewer users would be paid for by a fixed user fee of $8.85 per billing cycle (about $4.40/month).

There was little public testimony as the only public present were newspaper editors Jay Stoler and Evan Kramer as well as Ernie Gordon and Jack Pruitt. Councilor Jane Cramer asked City Administrator Martha Weaver-Britell when the Block Grant application would be submitted. Weaver-Britell responded it would be sent in by the end of the week (October 1) to the OECDD in Salem. Britell said it would go through a minimum 45-day review period with a two-year date for completion of the project set for September 30, 2001.

Councilor Ralph Donaldson made the following motion: The City Council of Port Orford authorize the City Administrator to submit the application for the 1999 Community Development Block Grant for the improvement and rebuilding of our effluent disposal system into the ocean, to be paid for by an increase in a per hook up user fee to the sewer, the amount will be approximately $4.40 a month, total increase (but it may be less). Seconded by Councilor Leeling. The motion passed 4-0 with Councilors Jim Campbell, Cramer, Donaldson, and Leeling voting for it. Councilors Robert Warring and Nathaniel Wander were absent.

On Friday morning Jay Stoler and I met with Martha Weaver-Britell in her office to discuss the block grant application.

Martha said the recommendations submitted by the waste water committee would be on the Monday, October 11 city council agenda. She said it was possible an environmental group could file a protest against the project, which would consist of an ocean outfall at Agate Beach. She emphasized it was important this project stay on track and the need for the community to be behind it. She said the Port Orford effluent water was some of the cleanest in the State of Oregon.

She explained that Community Development Block Grant money is federal money coming through the Department of Housing and Urban Development. This block grant money is distributed to

 by Evan Kramer

John Bennett from the Coos Bay Oregon Department of Transportation office said on Monday that the Driftwood Elementary School zone flashing lights and signs would be installed and working by Friday, October 15. Approval for the new lights was received from the Salem ODOT office and the signs have been shipped to the Coos Bay office.

The new signs will be located at each of the school zone. They will be mounted on poles and are 24" by 36" that read as follows:

School Zone
 20 MPH
 When Lights Flash.

A 12" timer activated flashing yellow light will be placed on top of the metal warning signs.

Slow Down in Langlois

There are two middle schools located in Langlois adjacent to Highway 101. Overhead signs with flashing lights warn motorists they are in a school zone. Langlois merchant Keith Goldsworthy has given me a four-page letter addressing the problem of car and truck drivers ignoring the flashing lights in the school zone. The regular speed limit in Langlois is 40 mph reduced down to 20 mph when the schools are in session and the yellow lights are flashing. Goldsworthy complains in his letter of drivers not only ignoring the school zone speeds but also ignoring the 40-mph limit. He reports regular speeds of 55 mph and above through the Langlois area. He is deeply concerned with the danger this represents to school children walking in the area as well as other pedestrians and to cars entering and leaving the schools. Goldsworthy is asking for more Curry County Sheriff patrols and monitoring of speeds in Langlois while school is in session similar to the Port Orford Police school zone presence.

Democrats Endorse Pipeline

The Democratic Party of Coos County has endorsed the new gas pipeline. After a discussion at their monthly meeting, the Democrats have thrown their support behind the proposal.

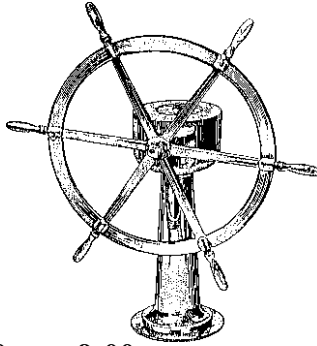

Dave Tilton, Chairman of the Democrats, said, "It means progress for our county. We are a progressive party. It follows that we would support the pipeline. This is a great opportunity to upgrade the infrastructure of the Bay Area. It could reduce our dependency on natural resources by attracting new businesses to the area. We would like to see our young people being hired at family wage jobs close to home."

Space Travel

By Graeme Graydon

When the National Geographic appears in our box at the Post Office, I can't wait to see if there's a new map or if another ancient tomb has been uncovered. This month's journal surpassed itself – it had both, but my enthusiasm was dampened when I found the map was a representation of our galaxy and its relationship to the Universe. It was well done, enough to remind me how very isolated and vulnerable we are on our tiny planet. One of the shorter distances on the map was the measure from one side of our galaxy to the other – only 100,000 light years. That's beyond my ability to imagine and yet it's our neighborhood. The more they tell me about our place in the sky, the more uncomfortable I feel about it.

There's a better way. I love to watch the same Universe, lying on my back on a silent hill top. This way, the stars aren't distant at all. They can be so close that I can almost reach out and touch them. It's a very intimate sensation. Something draws me to focus on one point of light. My mind carries me to it and I know that contact is made. There's a sense of sharing with someone, a rich exchange of awe and wonder. Yes, there is distance, but there is no separation. I feel that I am known and received - it really does feel like I'm phoning home. Such contemplation is silent and private. It carries me beyond the limit of my normal perception, beyond my human capacity to measure. Perhaps I am touching the face of God.

The new map of course, prompts the concept of space travel – of finding people like ourselves out there. But everything is so impossibly far away – and who would want us with the track record we have. So I look at what seems more possible. The connectedness that I find when I put my focus Out There encourages me to explore a different Universe which is much more available to me. It's that place from which I have come, to which I will return. Our literature is rich with the observations of people who have traveled there and brought back their story. Many have had Near Death experiences. People under anesthesia often find themselves in a body that is not nearly as limited as the one they left temporarily on the operating table.

Meditators slip in and out of this dimension on a daily basis. There is no question that they go to a place where time as we know it and distance as it is measured, do not exist. I suspect that a lot of great music, ideas, art and writing come from the same place. So far no one has been able to measure it. When a human dies, no scientist has yet been able to tell us where the life went, let alone what the life was – yet we know it went. The other Universe is close by, it can be reached. I have come from it and will surely be drawn back to it. I watch people arrive from it and leave for it all the time. It seems so much more possible and certainly more natural to explore the Close Universe rather than the Distant one.

And things being the way they are – I wouldn't be surprised to find that they're not separate at all.

We had several articles submitted regarding fire restrictions in various fire districts. In view of the change in the weather we've elected to print other material instead. You should be aware, however, that restrictions may still be in force. A Letter of Commendation from the school and National Merit Scholarship Corp., which conducts the program, will be presented by the principal to this scholastically talented senior.

Some 34,000 Commended Students throughout the nation are being recognized for their exceptional academic promise. ### New Dock Construction

The first truck loads of steel sheet piles started arriving at the Port of Port Orford on Wednesday, September 29. The sheet piles ranged in size from 35 to 45 feet long and weigh over 2,000 pounds each. They are manufactured by a company in Texas. However, the most important part of the sheet pile walls for the new dock are the Y piles. There are only 14 of them on order and they were to have arrived on Wednesday, October 6. They have been delayed and are now scheduled to arrive on October 13, nearly a week behind schedule. The Y piles are the ones, which tie the sections together, and until they arrive none of the sheet piles can be set in place. They are also the ones, which are 57 feet long.

The replacement dock contractor Laskey-Clifton Corporation isn't standing still while awaiting the arrival of the Y sheet piles. On Monday they brought in more dirt fill and on Tuesday continued demolition and removal of the old wooden dock.

What's New at the Library By Paula Cracas

Well, slap my wrist. And that's just what mystery fans did when they told me in no uncertain terms that I don't know a mystery novel from a suspense novel. I admit it! I don't, er, didn't. Now I do. A body, a detective, and the question of whodunit. But our list of books this week is no mystery. It's a hodge-podge. A pot-pourri. Different, yet with common threads. A list to peak your curiosity.

Let's get started with Ken Wilber's One Taste. Described as a journal, but so far up in the intelligentsia atmosphere, I'm having trouble breathing. Thought provoking, well written, and a taste of what Wilber describes as the ultimate way of being: One Taste. His sense of humor, wry insights, and personal experiences give his philosophical diatribe rest stops on a hard-going road.

Scattered, by Gabor Mate', M.D. is about "Attention Deficit Disorder (ADD), how it originates and what you can do about it." Dr. Mate' makes a powerful argument that ADD is the product of social and emotional environment factors rather than heredity. Do you know someone who lives with distractibility, hyperactivity, and poor impulse control? This book helps "create an environment of health and healing."

Ellen Handler Spitz's Inside Picture Books takes us on a journey back to our childhood. Did someone special read a picture book to you and did that book's images become a special memory? Reading to young children is very important. Spitz explores the profound impact picture books have on children and how they shape our lives.

Dancing Naked in the Mind Field by Kary Mullis is full of "outrageous ideas and extraordinary adventures...by a Noble Prizewinning scientist." Many subjects are covered, nothing is sacred, and it is a "multidimensional playland of ideas."

The idea of living "thickly" is explored by Kathleen Dean Moore in Holdfast; a book weaving nature and the natural world with philosophy and shared experiences in essays replete with insights to treasuring the "rich depths of each moment."

Written in Spanish and translated into English, Pablo Neruda's poems "the voice for those who have no voice." A bilingual edition: Neruda Selected Poems (written from 1924 through 1967), is testament to the power and glory of words in the hands of a master. Gabriel Garcia Marquez, an accomplished wordsmith in his own right, describes Neruda as "the greatest poet of the twentieth century in any language."

Our featured authors are the perfect excuse to curl up in an easy chair and explore some of the new ideas they express so well. Port Orford Library has a broad selection of magazines too. If you have a the states that then award it to individual communities.

She clarified one thing about the $440,000 loan and said the bonds for that could be paid back in 40 years, not 20 with a projected interest rate of 5-1/2%. Britell said the City of Port Orford can not have more than 3% of their assessed value as debt. The debt is now $1.3 million and cannot go higher than $1.8 million. She said the sewer drain field at Agate Beach that was destroyed in February 1998 cost $260,000 and we were still paying for it.

The City of Port Orford is currently under a Mutual Agreement and Order (MAO) with the Department of Environmental Quality regarding replacement of the Agate Beach drain field. The City has already missed two deadlines that were included in the MAO. The City was to have completed and submitted engineering plans and specifications by March 30, 1999. The City was to have completed local funding arrangements to insure construction of all necessary projects by April 30, 1999 and the project is to be completed by September 30, 2000. Martha said the April 30 guideline did not coincide with the granting cycles. Former City Administrator Johnny Alexander informed DEQ on June 22 that the first two guidelines had not been met.

Now it's a waiting game for the City until the Oregon Economic and Community Development Department responds to the city's grant request.
