Sprague Theater Opens By Evan Kramer

Valerie and I attended the final performance of South Pacific on a warm Sunday afternoon at Bandon's new Sprague Community Theater in City Park. This despite the fact the grand opening for the new Community Theater is not until Saturday, September 30.

The Bandon Playhouse inaugurated the beautiful new theater with a three week long run of Rogers and Hamerstein's World War II musical South Pacific.

The Sprague Community Theater was built for plays and live music. It features a large proscenium arch and dressing rooms for the actors. There are twelve rows of comfortable seats and with the rake of the theater you don't have to worry about looking at the back of the person's head in front of you. The performance of South Pacific featured a thirteen-member orchestra playing in the orchestra pit in front of the stage. Port Orford resident Dwight Comer played the drums in the orchestra. This theater was designed with the acoustics in mind and they are excellent.

We thoroughly enjoyed this version of South Pacific and thought the two leads: Kerry Oxford as Ensign Nellie Forbush and Lev Davis as Emile de Becque were outstanding. Everybody who took part in this play from the actors to the set construction people to the musicians deserves a lot of credit for putting on a production you would expect of a much larger community.

The Sprague Community Theater is holding a grand opening celebration the weekend of September 30-October 1 starting with public tours on Saturday from 10:30am to 1:00pm; a ribbon cutting and more public tours from 2:00-4:00pm and a performance by the Oregon Coast Lab Band entitled "Evolution" from 6:30-8:30pm. Tickets for the musical concert are $5 and available at Bandon True Value and Bandon Mercantile. There are more shows and receptions on Sunday. For more information contact Anita Almich (347-2517-Saturday); or Lorna Salt (347-2388-Sunday).

Other upcoming events include a Christmas variety show, "Waiting for Godot", "Arsenic and Old Lace" and "HMS Pinafore."

The Sprague Community Theater is a major new addition to the South Coast. The residents of Bandon have a lot to be proud of with their new theater.

Community Dance By Evan Kramer

The Kudana Marimba Ensemble played on Friday night to a packed house at the Port Orford Community Building. But this wasn't a concert so much as an audience participation experience. A crowd estimated at 300-400 people showed up for the free concert and of that number many, many got out on the concrete dance floor and let themselves go the beat of the African music of Zimbabwe. The ten-member ensemble from Eugene played marimbas they had made themselves, drums, and they also sang. They played for over an hour before taking a break and then returned for over another hour of music. By the end of the show several members of the audience had joined the ensemble on stage. The dance for health as it was advertised drew all age groups from small children to seniors and all got together on the dance floor and enjoyed themselves.

Special thanks to Cathy Bodin for bringing Kudana Marimba Ensemble to Port Orford. Financial assistance was provided by the North Community Health Grant, Port Orford Arts Council and the North Curry Families and Children's Center. Not only did Cathy arrange for the band to play here but she also worked

A Great Event By Graeme Graydon

There was a great event in our town last week. There were announcements in our papers, a poster or two – no big build up – a group of enthusiastic people would play African music in the Marimba style, whatever that was. The group photo showed a bunch of ordinary people just being people and I thought – I'd like to hear them. On the night of the concert, I got home from work and suggested that maybe we could go to it. So the meal got forgotten as my woman and I dropped everything to get there on time. Port Orford has a flavor all its own for having a concert. In the disorganized chaos, you can't tell who is likely to be a performer, who is presenting the show and who is the audience. It's a time for greeting friends – Oh look, so and so is here – a sort of pre-concert social occasion. Half of the floor of the hall was cleared of chairs. Seems like there's going to be dancers, and I wondered who would be doing the dancing. Then it became clear that the folk up on the stage would probably turn out to be the musicians, there was quite a crowd, with standing room only, a cheerful young woman said a few words, then out of nowhere a lone, strident phrase of notes setting a rhythm and a melody that was echoed and enriched as the dozen or so players joined in, an incredible pattern of harmonies and beats that like wheels within wheels made one rollicking sound.

I found out who would be doing the dancing pretty quickly, before I had time to give myself permission to get up and dance, my legs had already carried me out there with a life of their own. This was music that caused the body to move. What kind of step? – Any old thing, just go with the music and see what comes.

The players were totally caught up in the sound – it was more that the music played them really, they became puppets played by something that they had created – but now it owned them – and there was no getting off. I felt that the song, if you could call it that, penetrated into my being, empowering me and everyone else, as if it was a living entity with its own existence, breathing and laughing into us. Something else, when each piece finally let go and released us, all the players got up and changed to another instrument. Some performers were exceptionally talented, but they never "stole the show" because in the next moment, they left their instrument to someone else and took a lesser role.

It was a great show – but what made it a really great event? There were Dads dancing with their daughters, Grandmas coaching the littlest ones, teenagers dancing to the same beat as me, babies in arms, we were all in there, the baseball team came in and did their thing in their way – and nobody noticed that we were all having one heck-of-a-time in the same place, at the same time, to the same music. Now that's great. It was a moment when a kind of magic happened – and we were a family enjoying ourselves, without trying and without thinking about it. I wonder how many of us went home with the idea that we could make one of those marimba keyboards, get together with other like-minded souls to have a jam session with our own marimba band, right here in our own town.

Letter to the Editor,

Thank to Carolyn Shields for her letter and many others who spoke to the administrators on behalf of saving the glass block at Driftwood School.

You may not know that they plan on removing all sides of the remaining glass block windows through out this year and next. An all wall school. The architecture is being changed from school to penitentiary. All that is missing is the bars on the small glass windows. Hey, maybe they plan on turning it into a jail?

I am baffled at their snub to return and restore the vintage glass block windows back to new, good for another 50 years of service and earthquakes. My husband is a builder and designer. He told Harry Shipman, Mr. Sword and the board that most of the windows have many years left as they sit, with a new sill and new cement filling and grout. It could be done cheaply and fast. He offered to advise them for free.

Apparently scare tactics such as safety for our children and earthquakes are being used to turn our faces.

Replacing the glass blocks back structurally new again would be as safe as the day it was built.

Point your attention to the large stacked 1/8-inch windows that have replaced the blocks in the cafeteria and back sides of the building. They will be the first to break and cascade down like guillotines on our children. They are not safety glass. An earthquake with the magnitude to damage the glass block would shake the 1/8" windows to pieces.

Subtracting the safety and earthquake concerns now it all boils down to money and poor decisions.

Who is this person who is paid to take care of this building properly?

Every ten students in attendance pays for one teacher. When we lose ten students it affects the school. When families see the penitentiary style school and are deciding whether to move here and have children attend school here...the building will be totally unattractive. The glass block told me...the room had good light and they wouldn't feel trapped from the outside. That made me feel good they were there.

Penitentiary style will cost you in the long run. Less students less money.

I've heard that the pen is mightier than the sword but for the building's sake I hope the "Sword" is not mightier "indeed."

Skateboard Park By Evan Kramer

Construction has begun on the Skateboard Park at Buffington Park. On Thursday afternoon city maintenance employee Nick Paige was busy doing cat work in the "hole" which looks like a swimming pool. Skateboarder and skateboard park organizer and volunteer Jasper Shumaker-Pruitt gave me some background on the project.

First the city workers will do the rough forming of the double bowl and then volunteers including Jasper will work on the final forms for the concrete pour and set the rebar in place. The volunteers will have their hands full when the concrete is poured.

Funding for the skateboard came through a $2500 grant from the City of Port Orford bed tax committee and donations by numerous citizens. Halstead Rentals donated the use of a tractor and bobcat for three days. Jasper gave me some of the names of volunteers working at the site including Diego Cruz, Kean Fleming, Jack Pruitt and Emmet Cobb.

Donations to help pay for the skateboard park can be made at Chetco Credit Union to the Skate Park Fun. Shumaker-Pruitt said they could use some wood scraps for the concrete forms especially two by fours and pieces of plywood.

To prevent the Skateboard Park from turning into a swimming pool during the winter rains a heavy duty drain was installed along with a four-inch pipe. The drain was constructed and donated by Bill Foster. The pipe will drain the water into Mill Pond. The City of Port Orford donated the drainpipe and installed it. City public works director Allan Wagner told me city workers have put in about 100 hours on the project so far and he added, "We'll do what we can for them."

He even spoke of putting in some of his own time away from work on the project to get it done.

Jasper made a point of telling me how cooperative the city and in particular public works director Allan Wagner has been with this project.

In other news at Buffington Park but not of a positive nature vandals were busy Sunday night/Monday morning at the park. They turned on the sprinklers at the baseball field, which stayed on all night resulting in a waste of a considerable amount of city water. Signs advertising various businesses were pulled down from the chain link fence in the outfield and a couple of holes were punched in the concrete block wall of the partially built bathrooms adjacent to the baseball field.

Health District Update By Frann Grossmann

This column was created to help keep district patrons up to date with new improvements and changes in the Curry Health District, reaching from Pistol River north to just north of the Sixes River.

The proposed bond-funded project to upgrade Curry General Hospital's admitting and lobby area has been postponed while contractors rework bids to try to lower the cost of proposed construction. Originally remodeling was scheduled to begin this fall, but the lowest bid came in about 40 percent higher than the architect's estimate.

The health district board will begin meeting with community members who will help "finalize a job description" for a chief financial officer. The new CFO will replace Randy Scholten who left last spring, according to board Chairman Barbara Stover. The candidate will join Reg Williams, M.D., and Ginny Hochberg, M.S.N., on the district management council.

Tom Pitchford, M.D. of Port Orford's Curry Family Medical clinic, has signed a new contract with the health district reflecting his current schedule of 20 hours per week.

Gold Beach High School educators and hospital clinical staff plan to launch the Curry Health District Mentoring Program with spring 2001 as the pilot semester. The district also intends to involve other school districts around the county.

The Assisted Living Facility committee is selling T-shirts for $10 a piece. A shirt is on display in the hospital lobby. Check with the hospital receptionist for information on sizes at 247-6621.

The next health district meeting was set tentatively for 2:30pm, October 18, in the Port Orford City Council Chambers.

Thanks

Hurrah, hurrah! Our fish day in the sun has come and gone. Well let me just cut to the chase of the letter. Would I have done the Arts and Seafood Festival without Jon and Tobe Porter or Leesa Cobb? No way! Could we have pulled the Festival off without the volunteers including John Panozzo, Mary and Pat Evans, Paul Bodtke, Buck Dezern, Joanne Briggs, Mitch King, Stewart, Kathryn, Alex Porter and Amanda, Caren and John Leuthe, Mark and Dave Barnes, Paula Cracas, Anthony Mijs, Dave Knapp, Scott Macdonald, Chris Aiello, Jean Kilburn, Bill and Darrell Cobb, Vicky Nowlin, Jennifer Wilson and friend, Judy at Ray's Market, Kathy at Paradise Café and Stacey Nash. Again No Way! Friends every one of them who have never let me down. I would work with you anytime.

Hoists Working Again By Evan Kramer

The Port of Port Orford Commission met on Tuesday, September 19 with all present except for chairman Scott Macdonald. The commercial and sport boat hoists were fixed and back in working order at the Port on Monday, September 18.

The commission discussed the permanent dock project. The fuel pumps are not certified for use though the Port has applied for certification. There will be a 90-day testing period. The fuel system can still be in use during this period.

The dredge barge Sandwick will be back in Port Orford next March. The commission talked about keep inviting the Army Corps of Engineers project manager for the jetty back to Port Orford.

The commission discussed dock rates, which have been adjusted to $160 per month. Commission member Leesa

Cobb made a motion that the commercial fishermen who leave the dock and don't continue to pay their $160 per month fee, and then come back that they will go to the back of the line. The motion passed 4-0. Commission member David Darnell had an idea about offering fishermen discounts of either two months or 10% off their dockage fees if they pay their yearly amount in advance. Commission member Dave Knapp stood firm on the $160 per month fee without a discount. The commission tabled the issue.

It was reported that the Port is averaging two sport hoists a day at a fee of $15 per hoist.

The Curry County commissioners approved $5,000 in matching funds to the Port for developing a business plan.

The commission discussed co-management with the Port of Gold Beach. The recommendation for this idea came from Special Districts Association and OEDDC. Commission members Chris Hawthorne and Dave Knapp were to attend a meeting with the Port of Gold Beach concerning this issue and a countywide transient lodging tax.

Office manager Kathy Sherbourne will attend a grant writing class. Leesa Cobb asked that lead man Dave Barnes give a report at the monthly Port meeting. Barnes had been busy earlier in the day marking out the property lines at the dock.

Dodrill Proposes Debate

Barbara Dodrill, Candidate for House District 48, has invited Wayne Krieger to discuss the issues that directly affect the lives of the people living along the Southern Oregon Coast and neighboring rural areas in a debate before the voters. A copy of her letter to Mr. Krieger is attached.

“Spending the summer walking in the communities of the district has allowed me to meet with many voters who are very concerned about a wide range of issues,” said Dodrill. “I am about people, not politics, and I think the public needs to hear from both of us together so they can compare our plans for the Coast and our stand on the issues.”

Both Dodrill and Krieger have been holding town hall meetings in various coastal communities during the campaign, and Dodrill has been walking the precincts, but that is not enough, she says.

“I have been talking to the voters about health care, our local economy, the need for quality schools and getting them the funding they need... and I know the public wants our answers to these pressing problems. Let’s allow the public to hear from both of us so they can judge the better plan.”

“I propose we hold a debate, moderated by a third party and with questions open to the public and to the representatives of the various newspapers. What could be more democratic? I await Mr. Krieger’s answer, and I look forward to discussing the issues with him in a public forum.”

Council Awards Contract

The Port Orford City Council was busy Tuesday morning. In the second of their three meetings they considered bids for the Arizona Street repair project. This work is in the part of the road surrounded by Garrison Lake on both sides. The city had received three bids for the project ranging from $21,065 to $29,329. The city engineering firm, The Dyer Partnership, recommended the city go with the low bid submitted by Johnson Rock Products, Inc. Councilor Norm Leeling made a motion to award the contract to Johnson Rock Products, Inc. and it passed 4-0.

The council then moved into a discussion of the geotechnical survey regarding the ocean outfall at Agate Beach. Ron Bush from TetraTech/KCM had sent city administrator Martha Weaver a letter stating that KCM’s subcontractor Advanced American Diving, wanted to be paid for the “effort” they have already put into the project before doing any more work. City Administrator Weaver will check with city attorney Randal Tosh about the contract and an advance payment. KCM needs an answer this week on their request. The council will hold a special meeting on Friday, September 29, 10:15am to discuss the KCM situation. KCM is now talking about doing the geotechnical work on October 2 or 3.

The council then held a workshop meeting with Curry County Commissioner Lloyd Olds regarding a continuing maintenance permit to drain Garrison Lake. The city administrator will contact Mr. Mouchawar, owner of the Agate Beach property, and find out from him what it will take for the city/county to cross his property. The council will discuss this issue at the Friday, September 29, 10:15am meeting.

Fire Prevention Week

October 8-14 is Fire Prevention Week and October 11 is the day for the “Great Fire Escape” AKA The World’s Largest Fire Drill. A reminder to practice your fire escape plan, include the children in your planning session.

Check your smoke and fire detectors, change the batteries, check your chimney or flue for cracks, stress or carbon deposits before you start this winter’s fire. A good cleaning now could prevent a fire later.

Check electric blankets before putting them on the beds, no frayed cords or defective controls, a good time to think about using a GFI plug in next to your bed.

Check heaters, do the thermostats still work? Changing filters reduces work load on your heater and provides cleaner air. Be sure children are aware of heater rules. Don’t put anything on or near the heater, not a good place to dry your socks! Check the heater cord. Does it get hot when used? Not a good thing.

Is your house address posted where emergency services can see it? Teach your children how and when to call 911 (on both cell and portable home phones) with directions to your home.

Make your home safer for your family and our fire personnel. Remove debris, store insecticides, propane tanks (BBQ) and ammunition in fire safe containers or away from the living area.

Be extra safe, be fire safe. For more information log on www.firepreventionweek.org/

League Helps Voters

Many American women and a few men worked from 1848 until 1920 to secure the right of women to vote. An organization formed to help educate the new voters. It became the League of Women Voters, with a national organization and local Leagues in many states.

Members studied issues and voted. They tried to educate others on issues and mounted campaigns to get legislation passed to improve government, improve election laws, and secure benefits for many people in health care, clean air and water, education, and international relations to name a few.

As women gained experience in studying and working on issues and in trying to influence legislators, several attained public office themselves, from city councils to the United States Senate. Many other League members – men as well as women – continue to work at trying to increase the number of registered voters, encouraged voter turnout, and monitoring meetings of public bodies.

The League believes that our system of representative government will not work unless citizens become informed and participate. This means not only registering and voting but studying to become educated voters.

The mission of the League is to encourage the informed and active participation of citizens in government, to work to increase understanding of major public policy issues and to influence public policy through education and advocacy.

Senior Class Parents

There will be an important meeting for all senior class parents on Thursday, September 28, at 7:00p, in the Pacific High School library. It's time for Project Graduation 2001 to begin. Some of the project graduation officers from the class of 2000 will be there to help answer any questions you might have. You will be electing your officers that night. This committee is very important, and everyone is encouraged to come and help make Project Graduation 2001 bigger and better than last year. We're looking forward to a great turn out.

hard promoting their appearance and getting the word out about it. She even got me to attend and that's not a minor achievement.

The dance was a one-year celebration of the North Curry Community Health Grant and many people from the Curry Family Medical clinic were on hand to enjoy the evening. People had so much fun (written words are not adequate to describe what went on) that many including Cathy are talking about repeating this experience. I'll go along with that, and add that this was one of the best events I've ever attended in Port Orford.

A While Ago . . . By Jane Cramer

A while ago I visited the Storm Ranch at New River and discovered the site of one of the earliest cranberry bogs in southern Coos County. The bog was built near Muddy Lake in 1915. A spruce swamp was cleared by hand and a steam donkey was used to bring sand from the dunes east of New River. Each fall local women hand-picked berries in these bogs and were paid with vouchers redeemable at various Bandon businesses.

Native Americans were known to harvest berries from natural bogs in the Sunset Bay/Big Creek area. C.D. McFarlin, who is credited with the development of one of the earliest varieties of cranberries, planted the first Pacific Coast bog near Hauser as early as 1885 with vines from New England. Because of favorable growing conditions bogs were planted in southern Coos County soon after.

One of the most common soils in northern Curry and southern Coos counties is the Blacklock soil series, which is characterized by a partially cemented layer about a foot below the surface. This hardpan layer makes water infiltration difficult, causing it instead to collect on or near the soil surface. Anyone who has hiked the Blacklock Point trail in winter is very familiar with the way standing water collects on this soil.

Dan Loshbaugh told me his grandfather was an early cranberry grower in the New River area. In those days growers used white or Port Orford cedar to make wooden culverts with one open side. These were placed on the hardpan and covered with sand before the vines were planted. Water, pumped by windmills, flowed into these cedar culverts to irrigate the fields. The cedar was so dense what the water wouldn't leak out the solid sides, but would go through the open side to water the vines.

Now and then when someone digs where there were old fields, some of the old cedar culverts are unearthed. Although the cedar is in very good condition while buried, exposure to the air usually causes it to break down rapidly.

Northern Curry County also had a thriving cranberry industry by 1945. Names of some early Curry growers that farmed in Port Orford, Sixes and Langlois were Sweet, Baird, Stankovich, Zumwalt and Jensen.

Early picking was done by hand or with hand scoops. The scoops had long tines that were slipped under the vines and tipped up. The berries fell into the scoop and the vines went back into the bog. Later, growers walked behind a dry picker as they pushed it through the bog.

Today's growers tend and pick their berries with highly specialized equipment. Their hybrid varieties are developed to resist diseases; they use chemicals to fertilize and control weeds and sprinklers for irrigation and frost protection. Although they face an uncertain market today, they can look back with pride at the cranberry pioneers who worked so hard to build the industry in Coos and Curry counties a while ago.
