Candidate Forum by Evan Kramer

Nine candidates for various offices appeared at the League of Women Voters Candidate Forum in Port Orford on Thursday night before a large gathering of the public.

The candidates began by making opening remarks and they started with State Senate District 24 candidate Roger McCorkle (D). McCorkle said he had been a schoolteacher for 31 years and had previously been Mayor of Florence for ten years. The issues of concern to him are senior and health care issues, the high cost of prescription drugs, the stability of funding education, and jobs. He noted the high unemployment rate in Coos County and said the state senator should be there to assist communities achieve their goals.

State House District 48 candidate Wayne Krieger (R) spoke about his family including the many foster children he and his wife have cared for. Krieger said he had been with the Oregon State Police for 27 years mainly in the Fish and Wildlife division. He was appointed to the State Board of Forestry in 1994 and has owned a ranch and tree farm since 1972. He spoke of the importance of family wage jobs. He said we have two Oregon's now. The one in Portland which he said was prospering and the rural one which he said was not.

Curry County Commissioner candidate for position #2 Marlyn Schafer (R) asked the question "why vote for me." She said she knows how to get things done. She spoke of the importance of public safety issues. Schafer has been mayor of Gold Beach for 12 years. She is the chairperson of the Coos Curry Douglas rural development board. She said if elected she would hold town hall meetings all over the county and that she wasn't a 9 to 5 person but would be at work all the time.

Curry County Commissioner candidate and incumbent in position #2 Lloyd Olds (D) said he had no idea he was going to be here one year ago. He said he was running because he cares. Olds said he doesn't vote for special interests but works for all the people. He said county buildings had been worked on with no new tax money and that the various county departments had been turned into a team that represents the public.

Curry County Commissioner candidate Pete DiRusso (Independent) said he was here last winter in Port Orford during the Garrison Lake issue. He made a point of publicly apologizing to Ava Peterson over a vehicle accident. DiRusso said he had been the county emergency services coordinator for one year and served on the Ophir Fire board. He said he was looking for the young vote.

Curry County Commissioner for position #3 candidate Lucie LaBonte (D) said the county has had to use up the carryover contingency funds and had to borrow $700,000 from the road department. She spoke about developing a financial assessment and a 5-year financial plan for the county in order to come up with solutions to the county's problems. La Bonte spoke of her management experience and work with the South Coast Coordinating Watershed Council, her work in port management and on fish issues. She advocated workshops and meetings on North County issues held in the North County.

Port Orford City Council candidate Carl Eskelson spoke about previously having been on the council for eight years and that he had been off for two years "vacation" as he put it. On the council he served as commissioner of streets and recycling. He said the city has always been right on the edge and didn't look for that to change. He said we might be able to get Elk River water one day.

Candidate Forum

Port Orford City Council Candidate Jim Campbell spoke about his 54 years living in Curry County and 30 years working in real estate. He described the city's three most pressing problems as water, sewer and the lake. He said he was running for council because he wanted to finish what we got started.

Port Orford City Council candidate Emily Francona was appointed to fill a vacancy on the council in August of this year. She proposed re-establishment of the police commission. She asked the public to help the council make decisions with their feedback on the issues facing the city. She invited people to contact her with their concerns or ideas.

Candidate for city council David Darnell did not attend the candidate forum. County Commissioner candidate Bill Roberts did not attend nor did Senate candidate Ken Messerle and House candidate Barbara Dodrill.

Questions for Candidates

The first question for a candidate was directed to Roger McCorkle who was asked what his position was on changing the beach line at New River. McCorkle said he didn't want to fool around with the system and he wasn't in favor of making changes in the line.

Wayne Krieger was asked why he declined to debate Barbara Dodrill. Krieger said the two had had many opportunities to appear together at town hall meetings and she had missed several. He said they had a one on one that day in Brookings and another scheduled for Saturday.

Commissioner candidates were asked what their priorities were in budgeting money from Senate Bill 1608. Lucie LaBonte said the bill would bring in an additional $900,000 to the county. She said we needed to invest some of it, put some in the infrastructure and use some for match money for grants. Pete DiRusso said public safety came first and spoke about spending money on a jail detention facility. Marlyn Schafer said she wouldn't spend it on new programs or expanding existing ones but did mention the importance of public safety. Lloyd Olds said he would patch up the holes. He said he had already been getting lots of calls on how to spend the money. He talked about getting a permanent bill.

Roger McCorkle was asked how much it costs to run for state office. He answered emphatically "Too much." He said both political parties had targeted Senate District 24.

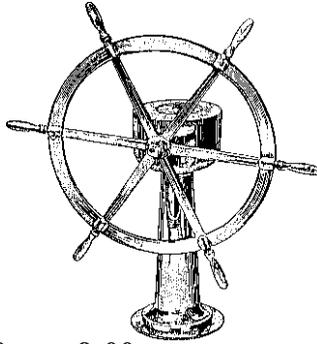

Wayne Krieger was asked if he supported repeal of the Death with Dignity law. Krieger said that he was pro-life but he has to respect the will of the people who voted twice in favor of the law.

Meanwhile at the cozy, old library, kids' programs are happening. Every Wednesday at 10:00am finds story reader Sally Johnston delighting kids from 3 to 6 years old. And crafty Jennifer Harrison starts our after school program with making "Magical, mysterious masks" on Wednesday, October 24th at 3:00pm. Library Assistant Anita Hart is working with the Langlois Lions Club members to coordinate the 4th annual Langlois Crafts and Collectibles Holiday Fair to be held November 17th and 18. Call the library (348-2278) for an application. A lot's happening, so you'd better stop by just to keep up and, while you're here, check out a new book or two.

Langlois Library News By Tobe Porter, Library Director

I am pleased to announce that we received a $10,000 grant from the Paul G. Allen Charitable Foundation. We're getting that much closer to the new library. We plan to re-bid the project after the first of the year, and start construction in the spring. We have received $227,000 in private foundation grants and the reason for this success lies in the tremendous community support. Nearly $35,000 have been donated by local folks; I cannot tell you how much that means to those of us working every day to build the new library. And the support doesn't stop.

Patrons Chuck and Cindy Schaumburg are having a moving sale, and they are donating 10% of all sales to the library construction fund. To see all the good stuff they are offering, stop by the library and check out the list. Patron Wanda Young has made two top-quality, collectible bears especially for the library. Known as "B. A. Reader" and "Missy Reader," these two beauties can be seen at the library or, soon, on our web page (www.langlois_library.org). They will be auctioned, with the starting bids set at $75 for the larger bear, and $45 for the smaller. When you see these bears, you will agree that Ms. Young is a very talented artist. Thank you all for your generosity. Now we have a shot at a $30,000 grant and I am very confident we will receive that money because the community continues to share in our commitment to build a new library.

Bedrock Garbage By Graeme Graydon

It started from a comment to my woman about cheeses and by some quirky association of ideas, led me to belt out an old hymn tune, line by line, that had been part of my adolescent world – more than fifty years back. It was surprising enough to have remembered the words so well, but what really blew me away, was that for the first time ever, I considered the meaning of the words that I sang. It was absolute gibberish, had nothing to do with my beliefs – and never had. I had sung it enough times to remember it perfectly – and I enjoyed singing it, and there it had sat, unquestioned, unprocessed, securely preserved in my memory, like some unwanted gate-crasher at my private party, given a ticket to stay. I wonder how much more of that old, irrelevant stuff, I call it “bedrock garbage”, interferes when it’s time to make clear decisions in today’s challenges, like choosing the best people in the upcoming elections.

To make things even more difficult, I was made to see how easily my personal opinions could be swayed, when my teacher proved the point with a powerful demonstration. We were a large group of students, not very well known to each other, but with enough interaction for me to know who I liked and who I wanted to have nothing to do with. I was put in a group with three others, two were OK, but the new girl was devoid of all appeal to me, she didn’t make it in my world. But it wasn’t the usual team thing, all we had to do was sit, unmoving, and listen to some rock music. Then we were asked to look around the group and form an opinion about each member without saying anything. A second piece of rock was played, quite different from the other, and the same instruction was given. I was very surprised to find that my opinions of the others had altered. A third, very different rock tune was played. I looked around at the faces in my group. I’ve no idea how it happened, but the two who had been OK, now got the thumbs down, and the new girl, who I had rejected out of hand was now very, very appealing to me. When the larger group shared experiences at the end of the exercise, it was very clear that our attitude towards our group members, had been changed, often dramatically, simply by exposing us to different tunes (without lyrics!) – none of which I was aware that I had ever heard before. No suggestions had been put in my head to influence me – just the music. Was I a puppet jerked around by some unknown hand? Didn’t I have a mind of my own?

No wonder its difficult, even confusing to make the clear decisions that I am supposed to come up with over changes in the law and choosing the best candidate

Owens Investigates Creighton

Mark Creighton, a Curry County Sheriff's Deputy, advised today that Sheriff Kent Owens requested a criminal investigation of him and his wife. Creighton said that on Monday, October 9, he was contacted by Oregon State Police Detective Dale Oester who informed Creighton that Sheriff Owens requested the criminal investigation for Disorderly Conduct, and Menacing. Creighton said the complaint stems from an incident at Ray's Food Place in Port Orford on Sunday, October 1. Creighton stated that he and his wife Gerri were cornered in the back of the store by Deputy Sheriff Ted Longton who tried to solicit a fight from them. Creighton said he advised Longton to leave him and his wife alone, turned and walked away. Creighton advised he was told the following day that Longton had called the Port Orford Police and requested to file a complaint against them. Creighton said he was baffled to hear that Longton had filed a complaint since Longton initiated the contact.

Creighton went on to say he was advised by authorities that Longton's initial complaint indicated that he was afraid that “my wife and I were going to jump him in Sentry Market.” Longton is about 6 feet tall and 250 pounds, and my wife is 5' 1", and 110 pounds. “What I do not understand is why the Sheriff's Office even got involved when there is such a direct conflict of interest. I believe this is nothing more than an attempt to ruin my credibility in Curry County, punish, and make an example of me because I ran for Sheriff in the last election. If anyone's a victim here, it's my wife and I.” Creighton advised he was told by authorities, Longton initially contacted the Port Orford City Police who did not take the case. Longton then called Oregon State Police who also did not take the case. Creighton said he was advised later that week by Sheriff's Lieutenant Boice that Sheriff Owens told Boice to send a written request to headquarters division of Oregon State Police in Medford, asked for a criminal investigation of the crime. Creighton further said, Detective Oester told him that District Attorney Charles Steak would determine what charges to file on the Creightons after he had reviewed the final report. Creighton further advised, “I plan to fight this very hard. When the investigation is complete, I will ask the Attorney General to review it for malicious prosecution.”

Questions About Flood Insurance?

State of Oregon representative Ann Beier will present a workshop on Flood Insurance at 7:00pm on October 30th in the Council Chamber at Port Orford City Hall.

FEMA Director James Lee Witt said recently that buying flood insurance is one of the most important things people can do to help themselves recover from flood damage.

The National Flood Insurance Program (NFIP), administered by FEMA, makes federally backed flood insurance available. Currently, more than 4.2 million policies representing $524 billion worth of coverage are in force in more than 19,000 participating communities.

“Flood damage—unlike wind damage—is not covered by homeowner’s or business insurance policies,” Witt said. “This coverage must be purchased separately and is available only in communities that participate in the NFIP. And people need to keep in mind that there is a 30-day waiting period before a new flood insurance policy becomes effective.”

“Flood insurance may be purchased through most insurance companies and licensed insurance agents,” said Jo Ann Howard, administrator of the Federal Inurance Administration, the part of FEMA that manages the NFIP.

Howard said the maximum coverage amounts for a single-family home are $250,000 for the structure and $100,000 for its contents. Renters may also purchase up to $100,000 of coverage for their personal belongings. Maximum coverages for businesses are $500,000 for buildings and $500,000 for contents.

For information about flood insurance, property owners should plan to attend the October 30th workshop, and may also contact their insurance agent or call the NFIP toll-free information line at 1-800-427-4661.

Before You Vote For Position 3, Compare the Candidates:

Bill Roberts

Is the only candidate who has the experience at a time when it is needed the most.

Is the only candidate who has 40 years of employment work-ethics to base his decisions on, not just a couple of part-time jobs.

Is the only candidate who understands the problems facing today's parents, he has been married for 31 years and put three children through Brookings-Harbor High School.

Is the only candidate who understands the problems and needs facing our senior citizens, because he is one.

Bill Roberts has accomplished a lot in the last four years, and there is a lot more work that still needs to be done.

Through September 28 the McCorkle and Messerle campaigns have raised a total of $498,810.32 in contributions for a Senate District with a population of a little over 100,000 people.

Democrats Target Senate
By Evan Kramer

The Oregon State Democratic Party has targeted four State Senate races in this November's election according to State Democratic Leadership Fund (SDLF) employee Barry Pac. The Republican Party currently holds a 17-13 majority in the State Senate. The four races targeted are District 2, District 4, District 11 and District 24. District 24 includes all of Coos and Curry counties as well as coastal sections of Douglas and Lane counties.

The Democratic Party candidate in District 24 is Roger McCorkle who is running against Republican Ken Messerle. Messerle is currently State House Representative in District 48.

The Senate Democratic Leadership Fund has donated $250,363.53 of In-Kind contributions to the McCorkle campaign and $5,000 in cash during the first pre-election reporting period, which is from June 16 to September 28. The In-Kind contributions have gone directly to the advertising vendors rather than to the candidate according to Barry Pac. The McCorkle campaign raised a total of $296,988.53 in contributions during the accounting period ending September 28. They spent $267,555.96 during that same period of time and had an ending cash balance of

Most of our inks cost the same or less than you'll find in Coos Bay! If you get 25 miles per gallon the 100 mile round trip costs you $7.24 with gas at $1.81/gal. That doesn't include oil, tires, insurance, etc. The IRS allows about 31¢ per mile, or $31.00 for the round trip! Save money and support the local economy! We've added a number of new ink types recently. If we still don't have yours, let us know and we'll consider carrying it as well.

Letter to the Editor,

Tracy's Place is coming along. "Soon" I will reopen better than ever. My gym will be a 24 hour, 7-day a week service. To join you will need an appointment. There is now a shower available also. Security key for shower and front door will be available.

Hours on my other services will be posted later.

These services consist of my tanning rooms and hair salon (Monday through Friday), manicurist by Laurie Boehm on Monday and Friday and henna tattoos by Meghan Gaustaud on Wednesdays and Thursdays.

Everyone has been real supportive and anxious for my reopening. This makes me feel wonderful and I thank you all! I'm just as anxious to have a big (re-open) Grand Opening.

Thanks to all and I will let you all know the day my doors reopen.

Sincerely,

Tracy's Place

Letter to the Editor,

As you probably know, I am a business instructor at Southwestern Oregon Community College. While my race for State Legislature is important to me, my students' education is equally important. I pride myself on being someone who puts people before politics and in being a person who puts her money where her mouth is. As education is one of my top priority issues in my campaign, I am sure you can see why I am committed to never compromising my own students' education. Unfortunately, that meant I could not cancel my evening class to be with you at the League of Women Voters' candidate forum on Thursday, October 12.

As a resident of the South Coast for over 50 years, I understand the needs of our area. My priorities in Salem will reflect your needs. I will address the availability and accessibility of health care and the cost of prescription drugs. I will fight for increased education funding and promote more parental involvement in local schools. And, I will work to bring family wage jobs to our area so we can continue to raise our families in our communities. If we can market what we have, develop quality schools, and maintain adequate health care services, we can attract new businesses to the South Coast.

Sincerely,

Letter to the Editor,

As the Mayor and a citizen of Port Orford I would like to thank Curry County Sheriff Kent Owens for the time and help he provided in getting the Port Orford Police Levy passed. The City of Port Orford appreciates the help you personally provided in keeping our community a safe place for our families to live in. Again, we thank you.

Ronn Kerr Appointed Priest At St. Christophers Church

Rev. Ronn Kerr

Rev. Ronn Kerr, a United Methodist minister, has been assigned as Clergy in Residence at St. Christophers Episcopal Church, Port

Orford, by Bishop Robert Ladehoff of the Episcopal Diocese of Oregon. This follows a vote of the congregation on September 24 to request the bishop to take this action. Although Kerr has already participated in Morning Prayer services, he will be preaching and celebrating Eucharist for the first time at St. Christophers this Sunday, October 22.

Kerr moved to Port Orford in April of this year where he and his wife, Jo, operate a small publishing firm as well as providing writing, editing, digital design, and web site authoring services to national clients. They are members of the Greater Port Orford Chamber of Commerce and Kerr recently became a member of the Chamber Board where he was involved in the negotiations for returning the Chamber offices to the Visitors Center. The Kerrs have been active at St. Christophers for five months.

Before moving to Port Orford for “semi-retirement,” Kerr was involved in different positions in the national and international church with primary focus on publishing, print communications, broadcasting, and video production. Kerr has been a delegate to several national and international church forums including the United Methodist General Conference, World Methodist Conference, National Council of Churches, World Council of Churches, American Bible Society, General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.), and other ecumenical and denominational gatherings. Because of his national and international church positions, Kerr has preached and led worship in churches of various denominations in virtually every state and several foreign countries.

Kerr is the author and illustrator of several books on theology, Biblical issues, and church history as well as several hundred articles, film and video scripts, brochures, booklets, news features, and digital media such as web sites and interactive CD Roms for church organizations and corporations.

St. Christophers, which began in 1889, is the oldest continuous church in Port Orford and one of the oldest on the Oregon coast. For much of the church’s history, it was the only church in the community and, therefore, has a rich history of serving Christians of all denominations. Kerr sees the role of St. Christophers in much the same way today. Because there are no Methodist, Presbyterian, Disciples, United, Reformed, Unitarian, American Baptist, or Congregational churches in Port Orford, Kerr sees “St. Christophers as continuing to be a church home for people from these other traditions which are, in many ways, very close to Episcopalian.” Nearly half of the congregation is already from these other traditions.

Kerr is also interested in cooperative ministries with other Port Orford churches. “When I talk about the church in the Port Orford area, I usually mean all of the congregations which serve the communities of North Curry County. Many of us are small, but united we are a significant benevolent force in the area.”

St. Christophers is located at 9th and Washington Streets in Port Orford and is known for lay participation in worship services. It celebrates with Preaching/Eucharist services on the first and third Sundays of each month at 10:00 am. It holds Morning Prayer/Preaching services on the other Sundays at 10:00 am.

Voter Guides Available

Nonpartisan Voters Guides, published by League of Women Voters of Oregon, are now available, free. Thoroughly researched by League members, the state-wide ballot measures are presented concisely with an equal number of statements in support and statements in opposition. Candidates are asked to reply to specific questions within a given word limit. No argument or candidate support is paid for.

Look for the guide, in tabloid newspaper format, at the Port Orford Public Library and Ray's Place Market. Please recycle the guide and your Oregon State Voters' Pamphlet.

Agent of Grace

On Tuesday, Oct. 24 at 7:00pm Ken Peterson will host a community Aid Association for Lutheran presentation event showing the PBS special, Agent of Grace. This exceptional film depicts the life of Dietrich Bonhoeffer, author and Lutheran Pastor executed by Hitler in 1944. Pastor Tim Carraher and members of Zion Lutheran Church extend an invitation to everyone in our community to view and discuss this thought provoking film. This PBS special is presented through a grant provided by Aid Association for Lutheran. Showing of Agent of Grace will be at Zion Lutheran Church, 2015 Washington Street at 7:00pm.

Letter to the Editor,

Curry County is fortunate to have three County Commissioners who truly have the best interests of the county at heart. Despite great differences in their backgrounds and political philosophies, they worked together very effectively to keep the county running on an even keel during some very trying financial times.

Commissioners Lloyd Olds and Bill Roberts are up for re-election. They, along with Commissioner Cheryl Thorp, have done a commendable job running the County government and seeing to the needs of the people. If they're willing to give us another four years of their leadership we should give them our votes.

Jim Rogers

Letter to the Editor,

Issues in an election can be discussed ad infinitum, but the character of the one who makes the proposals is the defining factor. Is the candidate honest and above reproach or is he promising things he believes will appeal to many voters without regard to keeping his promises.

Can we trust a man who in the first debate with George W. Bush tells about the poor little old lady who has to collect pop cans and bottles to pay for her prescription drugs but drives to the debates in a Winnebago RV? Or the girl who had to

Trust is a sacred honor. If we cannot trust an individual to tell the truth in the campaign can we ever trust him in the highest office? We think not. We are casting our ballots for George W. Red Ribbon Week

October 23 through October 31 is the 13th annual Red Ribbon campaign. In 1985, drug traffickers in Mexico killed federal drug enforcement agent Enrique Camarena. In response to his death, angered parents across the country began wearing red ribbons to symbolize their commitment toward the creation of a drug free America. Congress officially proclaimed the first national Red Ribbon Week, October 23-31, 1988. The Red Ribbon has now become a symbol for the drug free movement.

Over 100,000 schools and organizations nationwide celebrate Red Ribbon Week, making it the most successful drug prevention event ever held. This year the slogan is "My Future is Bright, I'm Drug Free!" Please support this national effort on a local basis – wear a red ribbon. Red ribbons are available throughout the community or by calling Curry Prevention Services at 247-2412.

City council candidates were asked how the oversight of the police department would be conducted. Carl Eskelson said he hoped the police would watch the city. Emily Francona recommended reestablishment of the police commission and also to prioritize the activities of the department. Jim Campbell said the council had tried a police commission once and we'll try it again.

Lloyd Olds was asked what are the strings attached by the Garrison Lake benefactor. Olds responded "nothing." He said the county would provide 25% in kind equipment and supervision. He said we needed to convince the state we need it done. Lucie La Bonte said Olds was keeping the benefactor a secret and wanted the benefactor to come forward. Pete DiRusso said he thought the benefactor was FEMA (Federal Emergency Management Association). He added that he didn't think the situation was going to go away very fast.

The council candidates were asked if it would require additional taxes to run the city. Jim Campbell said no, not now and that the city was running very cheaply for what we have. Emily Francona said she wasn't aware of the need for more new taxes. Carl Eskelson said the city budget was small and leave the tax base where it is.

All candidates were asked about Measure 7 – the takings law. Roger McCorkle said he was opposed to it because it is retroactive many years. Wayne Krieger said he had a problem with the retroactive part and he was opposed. Lloyd Olds said the bill was too iffy and he was opposed. Marlyn Schafer said she thought that Bill Sizemore's bill goes way too far and said she was absolutely opposed. Pete DiRusso was opposed as well as Lucie La Bonte who said it was not well written. Emily Francona hadn't read the measure (neither had I) while Jim Campbell said it would cause more confusion and the bill shouldn't go retroactive. Carl Eskelson said he was opposed but not before telling about the city confiscating property on the dunes, which got washed, away.

Marlyn Schafer was asked why she was so pro growth. She said it costs money to live in the county and that she wanted controlled growth. She said 70% of the land in the county was publicly owned and concluded with we can't be stagnant.

Lloyd Olds said he wasn't pro-growth. He said everyone wants to move to Oregon and we have to plan it. Lucie La Bonte said she was for planned growth and we need good land use planning.
