Port Introduces New Dock Plans By Evan Kramer

The Port of Port Orford held a public meeting on Monday at the Community Building and introduced the preliminary designs for the proposed dock improvement plan. The plans were drawn by the Seattle firm of Peratrovich, Nottingham and Drase. David Pierce represented the firm at the meeting and explained the architectural renderings. The grants for the dock plans comes from a $225,000 grant from the Economic Development Administration (timber dollars) and a $50,000 Regional Strategies (lottery money) grant plus $25,000 in Port money. $150,000 is earmarked for the planning phase and another $150,000 is budgeted for construction management.

The Port is searching for grants in the neighborhood of 4 to 5 million dollars for actual construction of the new dock. One of the many big differences in the proposed new plans are they include up to 18,000 additional square feet of dock space. Meanwhile the Army Corps of Engineers is working on a dredge management plan which is as important as a new dock.

I spoke with the very knowledgeable Port of Port Orford manager Gayle Paige who has been working diligently on this project for at least five years. She told me that three million dollars worth of fish sales were generated at the Port in 1996. Later she stated 1.6 million dollars worth of crab were landed at the Port in 1996. She said in 1989 the Port generated 3 million dollars in fish sales which translated into 6 million dollars worth of regional benefits.

David Pierce described the new dock design as an "open cell sheet pile bulkhead". The new dock will be a radically new design over the current dock. For one thing it will no longer be a wooden dock built on wooden pier pilings. The new dock will consist of a scalloped 1/2" thick steel wall with a concrete asphalt paved deck. The area under the dock will consist of earth fill. Pierce said the new part of the dock would be built first. Once that is done the old dock will be replaced. Some of the features in the plans include a 5 foot high concrete wall facing the southwest where the sport boats park. The reason for this was to prevent rocks from being thrown into the parking area during heavy storms as well as excess water. The 5 foot concrete wall idea wasn't well received and it will probably be changed. A large storm drainage channel is planned on the dock where water will drain into an oil/water separator built to Department of Environmental Quality standards. There will still be a floating dock and the boat parking area was shown as arranged differently.

There was concern expressed about the condition of the breakwater including the deteriorating situation at the dog leg part. Gayle Paige spoke about possibly opening up part of the dog leg. She said we need Congressman Peter De Fazio's support for attaining a study of the breakwater. DeFazio's assistant, Jana Doerr, attended Monday's meeting. She had some encouraging things to say about the project. She said money will be gotten for this project because Port Orford continues to land sufficient tonnage and the Port is doing its job.

David Pierce said his company has designed several docks like this which have been built in Alaska.

Some of the other suggestions for the new dock were a pedestrian walkway, a public fishing pier at the end of the dock and possibly some benches and a recommendation the Port use cut-off or directed lighting.

In response to a question from the audience Gayle Paige said the Port would like to use local labor as far as construction but the amount depends on government requirements.

Senior News By Mary Yoder

You know last week I said Beginning Bonsai was on Fridays - well I got a call saying there wasn't enough sign up so there will not be any classes at the center.

The luncheon on January 25 was delicious food. Those making it so good were Kay Neal, Greta Carver, Peigi Stahl, Glorene Godfry, Roald Young, Pattie Young and June Dennison doing the set up, etc. Clair Stahl as usual took care of the money.

Then the same night the dance: Gee I don't know what the Champaynes have been doing but they sure did a good job playing. Now they have a clarinet, sax, keyboard - it's really something. If you didn't get to the dance you missed something special. The volunteers who helped make it special were June Dennison, Lee Hyle, Art Klima. The lunch at the break was delicious. We had three young girls at the dance. They had such a good time. They asked could they come again.

The next thing up is the birthday party for February 2nd, Sunday. Better put in who has a birthday: Mildred Welch the 2nd, Lyman Beach the 7th, Ina Lefter, Robert Swanson and Betty Gaia the 8th, Calvin Disher the 9th, Wayne Geotter the 10th, Forrest Kirby the 11th, Lorraine Hass the 12th, George Gehrke the 14th, Beth Newkirk the 15th, Lucille Douglas the 18th, Nadine Oliver the 22nd, Rita Bannon the 24th, Kenneth Beldon the 27th, Grace Hauck the 27th, Adda Rose, and Penny Walkup the 28th. Happy birthday to all of you.

The Pinochle game is February 3rd, Monday - can't believe January is almost gone.

I'll close with this:

Some days we walk a lonely path, with tear drops in our eyes

Caught up in worries of the day, before we realize,

That friends are there to share the load, no matter what the task;

The weight is less when shared by two, all we need to do is ask.

TOPS

The Weight Loss Journey

The lure of the journey is strong. It takes us away from what we've always known, promising fresh vistas and new experiences. It offers possibilities for re-making ourselves and living the life we could only dream about in our normal surroundings.

"Losing weight is like embarking on a journey," said Peggy Ahlgrim, a spokesperson for TOPS Club, Inc. "Now, as the new year begins and resolutions are still fresh, take a few moments to think about what makes a successful journey. Apply the same principles to your weight-loss journey."

Here are some travel tips as you embark on your weight-loss journey from TOPS.

Before you leave, determine your destination. Consult your physician and get a reasonable diet and exercise recommendation from him or her. Only your doctor can tailor an individualized program to fit your specific needs.

Think about your journey. This heightens anticipation and prolongs the pleasure of your trip. Think about how you will feel healthier and lighter. Imagine feeling stronger.

Talk to your travel agent and make reservations. Ask other people how their weight loss journey worked for them, gather tips and information. Then, set reasonable small goals for yourself that you can really achieve. Tell other people about your goals. Ask for support.

Choose your travel companions. Many times, being a part of a tour group enhances your experience. It helps to take others along to share your experiences, challenges, and success.

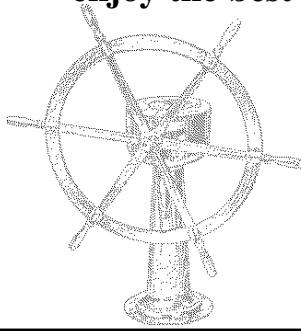

Budget for your trip. Don't be hooked into diet gimmicks, high prices food, or fancy equipment.

Pack appropriately. That means light! Eat light feel light. Enjoy light.

Finally, show off your pictures. Let everyone enjoy seeing the new you!

One word of caution: Don't think of your successful weight loss as the end of your journey or you'll be disappointed to find you'll need to take the same journey again. Think of this as the beginning of many new travels to come. Start planning all the exciting new things you want to do, now that you've achieved your goal of weight loss.

TOPS Club, Inc. is a nonprofit, noncommercial support group for individuals interested in losing weight and maintaining that weight loss for a lifetime. There are almost 12,000 weekly meetings. For information on a chapter nearest you call 1-800-932-8677.

Curry General Hospital

An increase of outpatient services and a new emphasis on clinical care this year helped boost Curry General Hospital's patient use in nearly all categories, ranging from outpatient services to emergency room visits, announced Randy Scholten, hospital administrator.

Reporting to the Curry Health District board during its regular monthly meeting, Jan. 15, Scholten distributed census figures comparing 1995 to 1996 in several categories of patient use.

Short stay discharges increased along with surgeries, and ER visits.

Scholten praised the hospital staff for "digging in and working hard during the past year of whirlwind changes. Staff were subjected to policy changes and management changes that resulted in an increased workload in all departments. My gratitude goes out to everyone."

He also praised the former management council - his predecessor, former administrator William A. Nickerson, M.D., along with former director of clinical services, Sandie Hannah, R.N., and chief of medical staff Reg Williams, M.D., for "turning the hospital around."

"It was a hard job, hard on the staff and to some extent hard on the community. But if they didn't do what they did, then the hospital might not even be here today," he said.

"A penny craved is a penny yearned."

North Curry Service Center

The North Curry Service Center may be known to many north Curry County residents as “the blue building” or “the Health Department Building”. Since July 1994 when the center was initially incorporated as a “service integration site”, it has had two project names. Initially it became North Curry Families and Children’s Center, and was then re-named the North Curry Service Center.

The initial vision of the board of directors was to develop a central location that would provide comprehensive programs and services to meet the needs of North county residents. As the center became a reality, and through the name changes and expansion of partners participating, this has remained a significant part of the goal for this project. Initially there twelve providers of public services participating in the project. The current list of service providers includes forty public and private non-profit agencies and organizations that provide service in some manner through the center.

To celebrate the success of our project, and to gather suggestions from the community regarding other ideas or needs they may have, the providers for North Curry Service Center are sponsoring a “Celebration of our Success” open house. It will be Friday January 31, at the center (blue building), from 4pm-5:30pm. There will be an opportunity to use the Oregon Employment Department kiosk, which is

We hope that members of the community will take this opportunity to come see our project, and provide us with ideas for future needs.

Letter To The Editor,

I have been on the City Council for two years now working closely with our public works department. I would like to share with you, the citizens of Port Orford, some thoughts on this department and the people that make it work for all of us.

We never need to talk to the public works people when things are going well, and things usually go very well in our city. Things are going well because of the fine job that they are doing to keep our infrastructure functioning, as it should. During those times when our winter storms are especially severe as they were in late December all four of the public works employees must put in many extra hours of overtime just to keep our sewer and water systems safe and functioning as they should. I know that they were forced to work all night on New Year's Eve, and this was on top of seventeen hours the day before.

While all those directly connected with the city government try to do whatever we can to keep morale high in this department, we could sure use some help from you, the general public. Just wave at the driver when you see one of the city trucks passing by, or better yet say a word of thanks or appreciation to the public works person when you see them out working in the city. A small show of public appreciation would do more than anything else as a morale builder.

Curry General Hospital

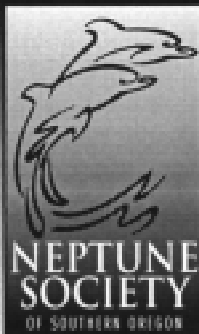

Sharon Richards of Brookings joins the staff of Curry General Hospital as director of business services, announced Randy Scholten, administrator. Her first day was Thursday, January 2nd.

Richards comes to Curry County from Mercy Health Care - Bakersfield (CA) where she supervised inpatient accounts for a 200 bed hospital and a 60 bed hospital.

She and her husband, Michael, live in Brookings with their two youngest children, Megan, 14, and Courtney, 12. Her husband is a respiratory therapist with Sutter Coast Hospital in Crescent City.

"We've always loved the Pacific Northwest," Richards says. "Both of us grew up in small towns. We found Brookings to be the place where we wanted our youngest children to finish growing up."

The family loves to camp and travel, and looks forward to trying the local fishing.

CCCCF

I have served as Program Director for the Curry County Commission on Children and Families for almost three years. This is a report to the community.

Although the CCCCCF is new, it had predecessors, which were mainly concerned with older children at risk of delinquency, substance abuse, early pregnancy, and academic failure. The CCCCCF mandate, under State House Bill 2004 is much broader. We are to be concerned for the general welfare of all our children from prenatal through adolescence and their families.

The vision of the CCCCCF is marvelous; identifying and improving supports for children and families, fleshed out by benchmarks, which are measures of how our children are doing. Benchmarks include rates of available child care, immunizations, perinatal care, child abuse, juvenile crime, teen pregnancy, and substance abuse. But realizing the vision is proving to be a monumental task.

First, the CCCCCF administers 9 grants that total less than $300,000 for the biennium, which in a county with 4,700 children, works out to be about $32 per child per year.

Second, the CCCCCF has limited freedom to encourage innovative programs to fulfill the vision because the money comes from state and federal programs, who define how to spend it. Also, some must be committed to vital programs such as CASA (Court Appointed Special Advocates) and Court Services because of dedicated grant streams.

Finally, although the CCCCCF is charged by the Legislature to “establish and define policies for services to children and families”, we are entrusted with less than 1% of the dollars that the state and local governments invest in our children.

Looking forward, the CCCCCF intends to continue to promote healthy children through community education and advocacy. Toward that end, a major priority of the Commission has been to work with our community partners to fight alcohol and drug abuse among children and their parents.

An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure. Investing dollars in a “recreation: program, which is about basic values and skills, is a lot cheaper than a year in juvenile lock-up. The cost of a visiting nurse for a first time mother is 100 times better than the cost of foster care or residential treatment for a severely disturbed child.

In Curry County, we can be grateful that people care about the future of our children. We can be grateful for the volunteers in Scouts, athletics, churches, the YES mentoring program in our schools, and elsewhere who either work directly with our children or support those who do. We can be grateful for the professionals who give their lives to working for children. Often they get neither the respect nor remuneration they deserve. Yet these dedicated and talented people choose to invest their lives in our children.

But, beyond the programs we fund, I remain excited about the potential for our state and local Commissions for Children and Families to help improve all of the systems, public and private, that seek to serve our younger citizens.

Janette Couture is the program Director of the Curry County Commission on Children and Families, a policy, planning and funding board composed of citizens committed to creating change for healthier results for our children and their families.

Computer Tidbits by Valerie Jean Kramer

Intel recently conducted a survey of Americans and concluded that we believe (or will believe) the computer is a "must have" technology. Responses were similar across age and gender gaps indicating a consensus among the populace.

Asked where the computer rates on a scale of 1 (revolution is just beginning) to 10 (it's over) 60% placed it between 1-3. I agree. The real computer revolution is yet to come.

Nearly 90% believe that cars and telephones are "must have" technology that is "essential" and "hard to live without." Computers were "must have" for about half of us - roughly equal to TV or radio. Almost 90% believe the PC will be "must have" technology for today's children compared with only 60% who see the TV as being that important to them.

Many local fishermen attended the meeting and they expressed several concerns. They were concerned about shoaling, wave surge (waves hitting the solid steel wall of the dock and bouncing back against the boats tied up to the pilings, the configuration of the boat spaces which some felt didn't make sense, the amount of down time caused by the construction and the location of the hoist. Another concern was whether or not to build a sport boat ramp. Pierce said to meet codes it would have to be 600 feet long.

Gayle Paige asked those in attendance at the meeting to write letters of support for the project and turn them in to her. She said starting the project depends on getting funding and as far as beginning construction they would go through the records and look for historical slow periods. Construction time was estimated at 6 to 9 months. The goal is to keep the Port operating during construction.

The plans that were introduced for the dock on Monday night are not written in stone. Suggestions and comments are needed by the Port before the plans do become finalized. They may be submitted to Port Manager Gayle Paige. It was emphasized on Monday night that the plans shown were a preliminary design.
