Hamming it up in Seaside By Evan Kramer

Valerie and I loaded the van up and headed north to Seaside, Oregon last week. We planned on attending the SeaPac 1997 ARRL (American Radio Relay League) Northwest Division Ham Convention on Saturday and Sunday. It was the first time we had driven that far north on Highway 101 for six years and there have been changes. We stayed in Newport, which I barely recognized, on the way up but didn't take the time to visit the aquarium. The aquarium is the city's big tourist attraction thanks in large part to Keiko (Free Willy).

The ham convention was held at the Seaside Convention Center and vendors and ham operators setting up swap meet tables took up every square inch of space. We were told over 3,000 people were signed up for the convention including a few familiar faces.

On Saturday night at the convention banquet and award ceremony the master of ceremonies rolled back the years. He had people who got their ham licenses from the different decades stand up starting with the 90's to much applause and working his way back to the 30's. Former Curry County assessor Al Devore stood up and took his bow at that point. Only one person stood and heard the appreciative applause from the audience for his having been licensed since the 1920's. We also saw Port Orford residents Dan and Mary Lou Hill at the convention. One thing about Oregon, no matter where you go, you see someone you know.

I'm not a ham radio operator but Valerie is (AA7FB) and she has an extra class license. The ham operators in attendance at the convention are a knowledgeable and well-trained group of people. In case of emergencies like earthquakes, fires, or floods when electric power and phones fail, the more of these people around and on the air the better off we'll all be.

We left the convention on Sunday and headed north on our way to Poulsbo, Washington, for a visit with Valerie's cousin Rob Weiss. On our way toward the Seattle area we drove to Long Beach for a look and walk around this festive ocean front town. They even had a small playland style amusement park for children and the place was packed with tourists. We both enjoyed the free museum packed with old time coin-operated devices. Sure brought back memories!

Poulsbo is located a little northwest of Seattle on Liberty Bay. It is a city founded by Norwegians who found a similarity in the fjords of their native land and the waterways of Puget Sound. The city maintains a Scandinavian theme in their historic waterfront downtown. One of the main reasons to visit cousin Rob was that he and his ten year old son Maury were featured in a father and son art show at Checkers Espresso in downtown Poulsbo on the Havne Veien walkway.

Rob works in watercolors and focuses on scenes of lighthouses and other water and ocean orientated themes. Maury works with ink pens and is interested in anything to do with "sea creatures." Most of the paintings were for sale and as each sold a red dot was put next to the title card. Maury was winning the battle of the red dots at the time we saw the show.

The local paper ran a story about the art show including a large color picture of Rob and Maury on the front cover. It was fun to see them staring from newsracks throughout the town!

We left Poulsbo after our visit and drove to Bainbridge Island and the Washington State Ferry Terminal building at Winslow. I was eager to ride across Puget Sound to downtown Seattle on one of the ferries since different types of transportation is one of my main interests. The ferry we

Senior News

By Mary Yoder

June 10 was the board meeting – Lorraine Hass the Vice President took over as the President was absent. It was brought up about the center being open on July 4th. The vote was to open after the parade. There will be coffee, tea, punch and cookies. Donations will be accepted. Also a reminder – dues are due for June 30, 1997 – July 1, 1998. The dues are $3 each.

July 12 was the rotary luncheon. These are the volunteers: Norma Ellis, Gayle Lee, Kay Neal and Bessie Laursen. Greta Carver worked on Tuesday – same thing – June Dennison doing the dining room setup, Thelma Lagace – clean up and Bill Butt dishes. Gee it's all lots of work and time. What a good crew – so dedicated. June 16 was pinochle. These are the winners and losers – Ladies high Betty Keeler – Ladies low Lee Tubbs – Men's high E. David Klein – Men's low Elsworth Drew. Come join – good time had by all.

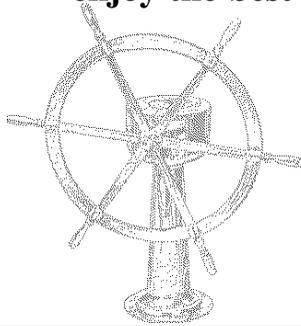

Need to remind you that the box for your vote for officers for the coming year is at the center. June 24 is the membership meeting – Tuesday at 11. After the meeting there will be a luncheon at the Port & Starboard restaurant. Lots of delicious pizza – all you can eat and most always a special surprise desert made by guess who? Frank.

Guess I've said it all – except this. If you growl all day, naturally you feel dog-tired at night.

Exciting New Jubilee Contest by Jane Cramer

Be at Battle Rock Park at 6:30 on July 4th to watch the Breeches Buoy Race. Better still, get your three man team together and join in the fun. Sign-up will be at 6:00 at the big stump on the beach at the bottom of the Battle Rock foot path. All action will take place on the beach. Contestants will "rescue a man and a woman from a shipwreck". Two dummies representing the shipwrecked people will have to be loaded into a breeches buoy and brought to safety. This may not be as easy as it sounds. The "people" to be rescued are frightened, so they might be clumsy or uncooperative. The breeches buoy is carried across a distance of 100 feet by team members running through the sand while heaving on a rope. The team with the best rescue time wins.

This event is a fun way to remember the brave members of the Lifesaving Service who risked their lives to save the lives of others. We have two popular reminders of this era in the remaining buildings at the former lifesaving station on Port Orford Heads, as well as the propeller from the "Cottoneva" which ran aground right here on Battle Rock Beach in 1937. All hands were saved in that wreck by means of a breeches buoy which brought the sailors to safety on the beach.

Let's all join in to have a good time with this new event. See you on Battle Rock Beach at 6:30 on July 4.

Port Orford Library

The Friends of the Library are sponsoring a program for the children during their Summer Reading program, "Celebrate Reading". Steve Taylor will be here from Portland with his magic show. The Friends will hold their next meeting on September 2, and have plans for another of their fabulous Book Sales on Sept. 13. Be sure and mark your calendar and watch for further news.

A new feature at the library this summer will be a rolling book sale. We will have a cart of donated surplus books on sale. This will help clear the back room for further donations.

Bonnie informs us that there are several interesting biographies and autobiographies recently obtained. These include: Andrew Wyeth; A Secret Life, Wallace Stegner, A Reporter's Life by Walter Cronkite; Sarah Duchess of York, My Story by Pearl S. Buck; and Don't Block the Blessings by Patti LaBelle.

Be sure and look at Ray Haney's collection of baseball cards that are in the library display case.

Letter to the Editor,

In November of 1996 the top paid official of the Hamlet of Port Orford stated that an unknown person without her permission and using the official Hamlet telephone had run up charges of over $480 by making numerous calls to a 1-900 sex talk line.

A big investigation was promised, and the culprit would soon be caught and punished.

Seven (7) months later people are asking why no action was ever taken.

Now according to rumors:

The Hamlet of Port Orford has finally received copies of the long awaited 1-900-sex tape messages from last November.

But the tapes were so hot that when they opened the box, all they discovered were ashes.

Hamlet officials are now looking for an expert ash sifter.

Asbestos gloves probably will be required for the job, as this is a very hot local subject.

Child Care Training

Coming up in a few weeks is the fourth in a series of training workshops for child care providers of children from infancy to the age of five. This class is available free of charge, to any and all, regardless of previous class attendance, and has something for everyone, (including door prizes for a few lucky winners). Taking care of children can at times be a staggering task, and understanding the factors that affect their development can be even harder. This course has been designed to provide strategies to these challenges, as well as to provide insight and encouragement to childcare providers. It will be held at the Gold Beach SWOCC center Friday, June 20th from 6:30 to 9:30, and will continue on Saturday morning, from 9am to 5pm. Pre-registration required.

For more information, please contact the Gold Beach Southwestern office at (541) 247-2741.

Mutual Funds

The best way for the average investor to diversify is through Mutual Funds. A Mutual Fund may own stock, bonds, or stock and bonds in several hundred different companies. The selection, purchase and management of these investments is done by professional money managers. An important decision for the investor is to figure out his tolerance for risk. He or she must decide how much risk they are willing to take in pursuit of higher returns. A Registered Representative may assist you in your selection of a Fund.

Letter to the Editor,

Monday evening June 9, 1997 at the Council Meeting I watched as you designed questions that were to be asked of Police Chief candidates, which proves that you know what questions to ask of others.

Then is it, that you don't feel you are accountable to the people of Port Orford, who elected you, so there is no need for you to answer questions. You, however, expect most people to be accountable to the council.

Give the people of this city a reason why you haven't deemed it necessary to answer questions posed to the council, in regard to community matters.

Hamming it up in Seaside Continued from Front Cover

rode on was named the "Spokane" and it was one of a series of three that are the biggest class Washington State operates. The capacity for the ferry is 2,000 people and over 200 cars. The ride takes 35 minutes from Bainbridge Island to the downtown Seattle ferry terminal.

Their fare collection system is interesting. The westbound ride is free. For the return trip the charge is $3.50 (without car.) It seemed reasonable to me considering the large and comfortable seats on the ferry, which put the airlines to shame.

The ferry terminal is as close to downtown as possible and after debarking we walked around the area around the terminal. We headed off to the Pike Place Market and joined the massive throngs of people at this very unique market and public space where fresh fish and vegetables and fruit are the name of the game.

The voters of Seattle and the rest of the state were being subjected to an election on whether or not to agree help pay for a new stadium for the Seattle Seahawks. The current Kingdome stadium, at 20 years old, doesn't fit the needs of Seahawks owner Paul Allen and it's either a new stadium or else. Allen is in the process of buying the team pending the results of the election, which were due the evening of the 17th.

There are many more interesting places to visit in Seattle but it was time to head home and get ready to publish another edition of this paper.

Letter to the Editor,

It appears that the city losing SAIF as its workmen's compensation insurance carrier is a blessing in disguise. The same coverage from a different carrier will save the city about $4,000 annually.

The reason SAIF cancelled their coverage is because the city has had thirty-six workmen's compensation claims in the past three years. Twenty-six of these were from the fire department, seven from public works and three from city hall.

These facts, and others, are available to anyone who inquires at city hall.

It seems what the city really needs is an active safety committee.
